100,000 AMERICANS TO GO INTO BATTLE

At Least That Number Expected to Help in Counter Offensive in Battle of Picardy--Big News Expected Hourly.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, March 28.—The Allied offensive is well under way and most important news is expected from the battle front in Picardy within the next 24 hours, war department officials declared today.

The counter offensive will be the sharpest blow that the Entente has attempted. It is understood that not less than 100,000 American troops will participate in this movement which will probably take the form of a rolling up movement. According to the latest information reaching Washington the Allies have placed 800,000 fresh troops along the Picardy front. It is these men who will be sent against the Germans in sweeping movement which is expected to turn the tide of battle in favor of the American Anglo-French forces.

The general staff is watching the impending battle with the deepest interest. The very fact that for the first time in the war, officers were willing to admit that the American army was to be represented in a battle movement by a large force was considered very significant. The figures mentioned by the officers who would discuss the outlook—100,000—was a real surprise as it had not been believed that General Pershing would be able to spare so large a number. It is assumed here that this was the American contribution to the reserve army created by the supreme war council at Versailles.

This army, officers said today, has not yet been in action. It has been held until the Germans had exhausted their offensive. The very fact that the officers here now say that it is going into action is of the very greatest importance. It means, they make it plain that the planned offensive of the Germans has failed of its object and has been checked. Now the Allies are ready to assume the offensive but whether they will try to regain any great part of the ceded territory is a subject that officials will not discuss. There is little of a strategic advantage to be gained by such a move. But it is expected that the flanking operations will be pressed to the utmost in order that the German morale may be crushed as much as possible and as many prisoners as possible taken.

It is assumed here that General Pershing will be in personal command of the American forces who are to participate in the counter offensive. General Bliss, our representative at Versailles, also is very likely to be "rattled close to the front" as the fighting develops. This, however, is a subject about which speculation only is possible at present.

FRENCH FALL BACK NORTH OF THE OISE

Retired in Orderly Manner, Inflicting Heavy Losses on the Germans--New Position on the Heights.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Paris, March 28.—French forces holding the battle line north of the Oise river have retired in orderly fashion to the heights west of Montdidier, meanwhile inflicting enormous losses upon the Germans, the French war office announced today.

"French troops fighting foot by foot inflicted heavy losses upon the Germans and retired in orderly manner to the heights west of Montdidier, the official communiqué said.

"The enemy suffered heavily when he concentrated his efforts against the French left flank where fighting of unprecedented fierceness has taken place.

BRIEF REVIEW OF THE BATTLE NEWS

Without relinquishing any of its violence, the vast battle raging in Picardy has extended farther northward to the district east of Arras.

The announcement by the British war office that a number of German prisoners and machine guns have been captured was a strong indication that the Allies have launched their counter offensive and that the counter assaults against the Germans are growing in force.

The fighting along the southern end of the battle line, which the French now hold, was described by the French war office today as being of "unprecedented fierceness." The Germans lost enormous numbers of men in their repeated attacks against the French left wing.

Under the blows of the Germans the French made a slight retirement in orderly fashion north of the Oise river and now hold a line which extends across the heights west of Montdidier.

Montdidier lies about ten miles southwest of Roye and about 18 miles southeast of Amiens, which is apparently the German objective. There is an important road running southeastward from Amiens that passes through Montdidier.

A violent bombardment of the British positions east of Arras was commenced this morning by the Germans and at the time Field Marshal Haig made his morning report to the British war office in London an attack was in process of development.

The expansion of the battle northwards has brought the infantry fighting in this mammoth struggle to the sector of the Scarpe river which was the scene of a terrific struggle last year when the British began their offensive at Vimy Ridge. This ridge, which was captured by Canadians in a brilliant storm attack, lies just north of the Scarpe river.

Americans of all branches of the service are now said to be taking part in the battle.

The first word that American forces were fighting shoulder to shoulder with their allies against the German hordes coming from the American front was received today from Henry G. Wales, correspondent of the International News Service with the American Army in France.

In this connection it was reported that there are about 100,000 American soldiers in the reserve army which the allies are holding behind their front.

Fighting continues with great fierceness along practically the whole front. The change in the line resulting from the French retirement in the Montdidier put the new German line less than sixty miles from Paris. Previously the German line at its nearest approach to Paris was 62 miles from the city.

The German salient that dents the Anglo-French lines near the point of their junction has been increased. The battle line now runs roughly from a point near Ribecourt, on the Oise river northward past the heights west of Montdidier, past Chilly, westward of Albert, thence bending towards the northeast to a point on the Scarpe about five miles east of Arras.

BRITISH CAPTURE MEN AND GUNS

First News of This Kind Since Battle of Picardy Began is Officially Reported From London--Fierce Fighting Continued Wednesday Night.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

London, March 28.—The British have captured a number of German prisoners and machine guns in the great battle of Picardy, the war office announced today.

This was the first time that the Allies have claimed the capture of prisoners and war materials since the fighting began a week ago today and it strongly indicated that the Allied counter offensive is finally under way and gathering momentum.

Heavy fighting continues over the greater part of the front. The battle is extending northward.

The Germans began a heavy bombardment east of Arras and at the time Field Marshal Haig reported to the war office an attack was developing.

"Severe fighting continued on Wednesday and last night on both sides of the Somme river and northward from Albert towards Moyellen," the official announcement said.

"Along the Somme valley and in the sectors of Beaumont-Hamel, Prunelles and Moyenneville the Germans made repeated assaults, all of which were repulsed.

"The fighting continues fiercely on both banks of the Somme river.

"The British have captured a number of prisoners and machine guns.

"East of Arras a heavy bombardment was opened by the enemy this morning and an attack is developing in that sector.

FILE COAL ORDER NOW WITH DEALER

Consumers Must Fill Out Application Blank for Next Winter's Supply—There May Be a Small Drop in Price of Coal.

The national fuel administrator has outlined a plan for the consumer's coal supply from April 1, 1918, to April 1, 1919, and under this plan all coal consumers must obtain application blanks from their coal dealers which they are required to fill out stating the amount of coal required by them for next winter's burning. These application blanks have now been supplied all of the local retail dealers, and every coal consumer should secure one from his dealer and fill it out as early as possible. The form of application has been approved by Judge J. G. Van Etten the fuel administrator of Ulster county.

A copy of this application blank will be found further on in this article. It will be seen that the dealers of the city will require cash for their coal and will extend a credit of not more than ten days. One prominent coal dealer stated that this condition was only in fairness to the retail dealer who was forced to pay promptly for his coal from the wholesale dealer, and it was hardly right to expect the retail dealer to carry a large amount of credit on his books.

It was further explained by the dealer that it was necessary for the application blanks to be filled out promptly so that the dealer would be in a position to know exactly the amount of coal he would need to supply his trade. At the present time they are only receiving a stated amount each month.

In past years it has been customary for some people to buy carload lots of coal in order to get the gross weight or for a group of neighbors to combine and purchase a carload of coal. This will not be allowed this year.

The official order issued some days ago said that there would be a drop of 30 cents a ton in the price of coal April 1, extending to September 1, but since that time it is understood that the railroads have been granted an increase of 15 cents a ton in freight rates.

That being so, it is likely there will be only a drop of 15 cents per ton, but even that is merely a guess as nothing official could be learned as yet. In fact coal consumers will be lucky if there is any drop at all in the price of the black diamonds.

BIG PILE DRIVER ADRIFT IN RIVER

It Was Owned by Alex Sturgeon of This City--Catskill Evening Line Notes--Coal, Ice and Brick Shipped in First Tow.

A pile driver belonging to Alex Sturgeon of this city, who has the contract putting up the over head cable between Catskill and Hudson, broke loose from the Bull Durham ice house on the Athens side of the river Saturday morning. The discovery was made by Frank M. Best, keeper of the light house, who immediately notified the Hudson police, and they got in communication with Mr. Sturgeon. The pile driver floated to a short distance below Crissey's Point. This pile driver is about 40 feet wide, 75 feet long, and has a drive or ladder of about 100 feet and is worth between $8,000 and $9,000, as it carries a very valuable engine and tools. Mr. Sturgeon has been using it all winter in connection with the work of installing the cable, using the boiler to heat water to make cement for the piers, and it was his intention to take it across the river shortly to start work on the piers on the east bank of the Hudson. Nobody had been aboard for a week or ten days, and it was not known definitely whether some one had robbed it and cut it loose or whether it had broken loose.

The first tow of the season off for New York Wednesday in charge of the Cornell line tug Washburn. The tow consisted of barges loaded with coal, ice and brick for the New York market.

The Catskill Evening Line is now ready for freight and the freighter Storm King is expected from New York Monday evening, landing at Catskill.

The Central Hudson Line expects to start the up river service about April 10, when the steamer Jacob H. Tremper will be on the route. Service between Rondout and New York will be resumed Monday by the steamer Poughkeepsie.

Wednesday a large box was launched from the Honovan yard on the Strand in Ponchockie. Last week a box was launched from the Rafferty & Feeney yard and this morning the bottom of a new box was started at that yard.

All of the local boatyards are working full force.

"FOLLOW ME" FRIDAY NIGHT

Anna Held Musical Comedy at Opera House is Fascinating Production.

Only one musical comedy organization has been able to survive a war time trip from coast to coast and back again this season, and that is the Anna Held Company, which will present "Follow Me" at the Kingston opera house Friday evening. Scores of companies that started out have been recalled and to have kept the big company on the road is a decided achievement for the Anna Held Company. The leading role is assumed by Anna Held's daughter, Liane Held Carrera, who has played the part successfully since her mother recently became seriously ill at Milwaukee. "Follow Me" is a combination of drama, opera and spectacular performance. Mme. Carrera is surrounded by a highly capable cast and chorus girls of exceptional good looks, while the production scenically is one of the most pleasing that has been put out in several seasons. Bizarre creations worn by the young women of the chorus appear in almost endless procession and represent an outlay of $30,000. The many gowns worn by Liane Held are the extreme of gorgeousness.

Good Friday Services.

Services with Holy Communion will be held on Friday morning at 10:30 at the Livingston Street Lutheran Church. Subject: "Father into Thy Hands I Commend My Spirit." The members are requested to appear for services according to present time.

An Easter social will be given at the Lutheran parsonage, Woodstock, N. Y., on April 2. Supper will be served on European plan, from 7 to 10 p. m. Home made candy and ice cream for sale. Everybody invited. A good time in store for all.

The secretary of the Centrals acted as toastmaster and spoke very feelingly of the sorrow at losing one of their members, but expressed the best wishes of every member of the Centrals for good luck in his duty for the good old U. S. A. He then asked all to stand and sing the "Star Spangled Banner." After dainty luncheon was served, singing was indulged in and the president of the Centrals was called upon and also spoke feelingly of the departure of Mr. Rourke. FORGERY CASE IS ADJOURNED

Chief of Police J. Allan Wood returned from Syracuse late Wednesday with Mrs. George M. Colburn, who after spending the night at the county hotel, was arraigned before Judge Schirick in police court this morning when the case was adjourned until April 4, and bail bond was fixed at $1,000. Mrs. Colburn said she wished to retain a lawyer to look after her interests.

Mrs. Colburn has been married twice. Her present husband is a member of the army and is in one of the training camps at the present time. She is accused of presenting a forged check for $50 at the store of S. E. Elmhurst on lower Broadway. The check was made out in her former name of Cora E. Bisner and purported to be signed by William Van Wagner. The check was drawn on a local bank and was returned marked "No funds."

The matter was reported to the police department who located Mrs. Colburn in Syracuse where she was arrested and held until the arrival of Chief Wood.

Mrs. Colburn is a medium sized woman, well dressed and presenting a good appearance.

"Severe fighting continued on Wednesday and last night on both sides of the Somme river and northward from Albert towards Moyellen," the official announcement said.

"Along the Somme valley and in the sectors of Beaumont-Hamel, Prusseau and Moyenneville the Germans made repeated assaults, all of which were repulsed."

"The fighting continues fiercely on both banks of the Somme river. The British have captured a number of prisoners and machine guns. East of Arras a heavy bombardment was opened by the enemy this morning and an attack is developing in that sector."

By "East of Arras" the war office evidently located the attack in the sector of the Scarpe river. The Scarpe river represented the extreme northern end of the line over which the Germans shelled the British and French positions before beginning their present drive. The infantry fighting was centered many miles south of that district, however.

FILE COAL ORDER NOW WITH DEALER

Consumers Must Fill Out Application Blank for Next Winter's Supply—There May be a Small Drop in Price of Coal.

The national fuel administrator has outlined a plan for the consumer's coal supply from April 1, 1918, to April 1, 1919, and under this plan all coal consumers must obtain application blanks from their coal dealers which they are required to fill out stating the amount of coal required by them for next winter's burning. These application blanks have now been supplied all of the local retail dealers, and every coal consumer should secure one from his dealer and fill it out as early as possible. The form of application has been approved by Judge J. G. Van Etten, the fuel administrator of Ulster county.

A copy of this application blank will be found further on in this article. It will be seen that the dealers of the city will require cash for their coal and will extend a credit of not more than ten days. One prominent coal dealer stated that this condition was only in fairness to the retail dealer who was forced to pay promptly for his coal from the wholesale dealer, and it was hardly right to expect the retail dealer to carry a large amount of credit on his books.

Fill Out Promptly.
It was further explained by the dealer that it was necessary for the application blanks to be filled out promptly so that the dealer would be in a position to know exactly the amount of coal he would need to supply his trade. At the present time they are only receiving a stated amount each month.

In past years it has been customary for some people to buy carload lots of coal in order to get the gross weight or for a group of neighbors to combine and purchase a carload of coal. This will not be allowed this year.

BIG PILE DRIVER ADRIPT IN RIVER

It Was Owned by Alex Sturgeon of This City--Causkill Evening Line Notes--Coal, Ice and Brick Shipped in First Tow.

A pile driver belonging to Alex Sturgeon of this city, who has the contract putting up the over head cable between Causkill and Hudson, broke loose from the Bull Durham ice house on the Athens side of the river Saturday morning. The discovery was made by Frank M. Best, keeper of the light house, who immediately notified the Hudson police, and they got in communication with Mr. Sturgeon. The pile driver floated to a short distance below Crissey's Point.

This pile driver is about 40 feet wide, 75 feet long, and has a drive or ladder of about 100 feet and is worth between $2,000 and $3,000 as it carries a very valuable engine and tools. Mr. Sturgeon has been using it all winter in connection with the work of installing the cable, using the boiler to heat water to make cement for the piers, and it was his intention to take it across the river shortly to start work on the piers on the east bank of the Hudson. Nobody had been aboard for a week or ten days, and it was not known definitely whether some one had robbed it and cut it loose or whether it had broken loose.

The first tow of the season for New York Wednesday in charge of the Cornell line tug Washburn. The tow consisted of barges loaded with coal, ice and brick for the New York market.

The Causkill Evening Line is now ready for freight and the freighter Storm King is expected from New York Monday evening, landing at Causkill.

The Central Hudson Line expects to start the up river service about April 10, when the steamer Jacob H. Tremper will be on the route. Service between Rondout and New York will be resumed Monday by the steamer Poughkeepsie.

Wednesday a large box was launched from the Donovan yard on the Strand in Poughkeepsie.

Last week a box was launched.

from the Rafferty & Feeney yard and this morning the bottom of a new box was started at that yard.

All of the local boatyards are working full force.

"FOLLOW ME" FRIDAY NIGHT

Anna Held Musical Comedy at Opera House is Fascinating Production.

Only one musical comedy organization has been able to survive a war time trip from coast to coast and back again this season, and that is the Anna Held Company, which will present "Follow Me" at the Kingston opera house Friday evening. Scores of companies that started out have been recalled and to have kept the big company on the road is a decided achievement for the Anna Held Company. The leading role is assumed by Anna Held's daughter, Lilian Held Carrera, who has played the part successfully since her mother recently became seriously ill at Milwaukee. "Follow Me" is a combination of drama, opera and spectacular performance. Mme. Carrera is surrounded by a highly capable cast and chorus girls of exceptional good looks, while the production scenically is one of the most pleasing that has been put out in several seasons. Bizarre creations worn by the young women of the chorus appear in almost endless procession and represent an outlay of $30,000. The major gown worn by Lilian Held is the extreme of gorgeousness.

Good Friday Services.

Services with Holy Communion will be held on Friday morning at 10:30, at the Livingston Street Lutheran Church. Subject, "Father Into Thy Hands I Commend My Spirit." Confessional service at 10 o'clock. Divine services with Holy Communion on both Sunday morning and evening. To avoid confusion the services on Easter Sunday will be held according to old time. The members are requested to appear for services according to present time.

Easter Social at Woodstock.

An Easter social will be given at the Lutheran parsonage, Woodstock, N. Y., on April 2. Supper will be served on European plan, from 7 to 10 p. m. Home made candy and ice cream for sale. Everybody invited. A good time in store for all.

How pure these flakes must be

Things you never dreamed could be laundered

A few years ago, how you dreaded to trust your delicate things to soap and water! Today, who thinks of sending Georgettes to the cleaners? or precious laces? or the most expensive sweaters? or delicate hangings? There's a better way, quicker, much less expensive.

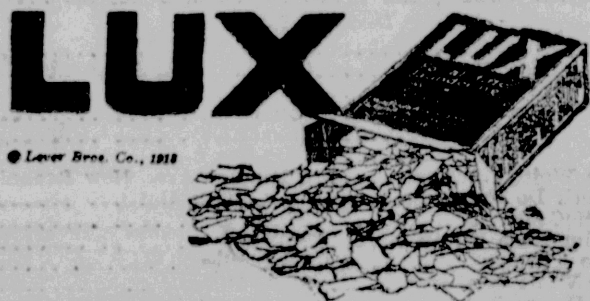

You cleanse these things yourself—keep them like new with Lux, the modern form of soap. Things you never dreamed could be laundered, you now trust unhesitatingly to the pure, delicate flakes which whisk up into the richest lather and cleanse without rubbing.

Without the purity of Lux, delicate and unusual things could not be trusted to even this new way of washing.

If water alone won't hurt a fabric, then Lux won't.

Delicate colors come from the Lux suds as fresh as when new. If the water alone does not cause the color to "run," Lux won't injure it one degree.

Try Lux yourself. You will be delighted. Your grocer, druggist or department store has Lux. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

LAST WEEK TO MAKE INCOME TAX RETURN

File Your Return This Week or Become Liable to the Penalty for Your Failure.

This is the last week in which income tax returns may be made, and the last week in which Deputy Internal Revenue Collectors Ward and Lefever will be at the court house to assist income taxpayers in making up their returns.

The law requires that the return must be made up and forwarded to the internal revenue collector of the district in which a person lives so that it will reach him on or before April first. For failing to make a return on time, the penalty is not less than $20 nor more than $1,000, and in addition fifty per cent of the amount of tax due. For making a false or fraudulent return the penalty is not exceeding $2,000 or not exceeding one year's imprisonment, or both, in the discretion of the court, and in addition, 100 per cent of the tax evaded.

The tax may be paid at any time on or before June 15 next, to the collector to whom the return is sent, but it may be paid in the form of certified check, post office money order or express money order at the time the return is filed. The return may be filed with Deputy Collectors Ward or Lefever at the court house this week.

Both Messrs. Ward and Lefever have been working daily from 9 o'clock every morning until 10 or 11 o'clock in the evening since coming to Kingston. Income taxpayers have been seeking information daily from Messrs. Ward and Lefever and from Mr. Darrow, who was here during January and February, but there are still a number of income taxpayers who have failed to file their return.

GREATER ACTIVITY ON AMERICAN FRONT

American Officers are in Albert District Gaining Practical Experience in Trench Warfare.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
With the American Army in France, March 27.—(6 p. m.)—Observers on the American front north of Toul have noted an increase in the activity of the German infantry during the past 24 hours.

Numerous parties of the enemy were seen passing and repassing certain points, entering or leaving dugouts and traversing communication trenches. Others were seen entering or leaving battery positions or passing through villages.

American gunners shelled all points where enemy troop movements were reported, sending over gas shells, shrapnel and high explosives.

Farther back American sharpshooters were busy sniping the Germans with 37 millimetre guns, observers reporting many direct hits on dugout entrances. The continued harassing fire drew an outburst from German guns when 200 high explosive shells were suddenly thrown against a certain American position.

The flashes of the German guns could be seen from an American captive balloon which was on night observation duty.

There has been little aerial activity as the Germans have evidently sent most of their machines to the scene of their offensive.

A certain number of American officers who are attached to British regiments to learn the latest methods of trench warfare are in the Albert district. It is indicated by post cards received from them by their friends on the Toul front.

(Albert has been the scene of heavy fighting in the German offensive in Picardy. The German war office in its official report on Wednesday claimed the capture of Albert. This was borne out by the British war office which said: "Attempts made by the enemy in the course of the day to debouch westward from the town of Albert have been driven back in each instance with the heaviest of losses.")

Some of the cards were illustrated, showing photographs of the statue of the Saviour on the temple of the Albert Church. Since 1914 when it was struck by a German shell the statue has been leaning over at an angle of 45 degrees.

Many American gas officers are included among those attached to the British for active training.

The German advance over the Somme battlefield recalls July, 1916, when the Foreign Legion stormed Bely-en-Santerre, several American volunteers being killed at the time and others wounded. The English Black Watch Regiment, containing many Americans also took a prominent part in the fighting around places which are again appearing in the official communiques.

So far the Americans have not received any information that the Germans are using tanks.

(A semi-official announcement was made in Berlin on Wednesday that the Germans were using their own tanks as well as others captured from the British.)

News that has reached the American front indicated that the enemy had achieved success solely through weight of artillery and the masses of infantry obtained by stripping other parts of the front.

PARCEL POST TO FRANCE LIMITED

No More Packages May be Mailed to Soldiers Abroad Except on Request Approved by an Officer.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, March 28.—The recent war department order curtailing shipments to members of the American expeditionary force was taken "only to meet a most urgent war necessity," Major General Payton C. March, acting chief of staff, explained today, and was based on the recommendation of General Pershing.

"On account of the well known shortage in shipping," said General March, "it has been found necessary to limit shipments to France to things absolutely essential to the fighting efficiency of our forces there."

"Shipment of parcels to individual officers and soldiers have reached the enormous proportion of an average of 250 tons a week, and by reason of their bulk have displaced a great amount of important army freight on commercial liners and transports."

"Shipments of articles to members of the American expeditionary forces will be limited to those articles required by individuals to whom they are to be given, these requests having been approved by the commanding officer."

"It will be seen from these instructions that the war department does not mean to prohibit shipments by relatives and friends of needed articles to members of our army in France, but to restrict the shipment to the needs of the individual, as he requires them."

"In this manner the amount of shipments of such articles will be under the control of those in authority, yet will deprive no person of any needed articles. This action is taken only to meet a most urgent war necessity."

The text of the order is as follows: "In future shipments of any articles to members of the American expeditionary forces abroad will be limited to those articles which have been requested by the individual to whom same is to be shipped, such request having been approved by his regimental or higher commander. Parcel post shipments will be accepted by the post office authorities and other shipments by express or freight companies only upon presentation of the above approved request in each individual case."

Wood's Lasting Qualities.

Wood is almost an imperishable substance and if kept from attacks of organisms, both animal and vegetable, will practically last forever. The heart wood in living trees is as thoroughly lifeless as the average fence post or timber lying in a lumber yard, but is usually protected by the outward bark. When insects and disease find entrance through holes or cracks a hollow tree usually results and the decay or destruction is as rapid as though not inside living bark.

Prehistoric Skull Borings.

The operation called "trephining," by which a button of skull is removed, is regarded in these modern days as very hazardous, and to be attempted only as a last resort. But the ancient Peruvians, centuries before Columbus landed, practiced it very commonly. Of 1,000 of their skulls, recently obtained by the United States bureau of ethnology from prehistoric caves and cemeteries, nearly 2 per cent had been trephined for some cause.

BIG TITLE HOLDERS ARE AT CAMP DODGE

Athletes of Renown at Iowa Cantonment in Service.

Champions of Various Descriptions Would Make Hard Proposition in Almost Any Kind of Dual Contest—Caddock There.

Champions of various descriptions are becoming so numerous at Camp Dodge that one more or less no longer attracts attention.

Earl Caddock, who upheld his claims as champion heavyweight wrestler of the world in his match with Zbyszko recently, is only one of a galaxy of stellar athletes at Camp Dodge, and the cantonment would be a hard proposition in almost any kind of a dual contest.

Capt. Malcolm Baldrige of battery F, Three Hundred and Thirty-eighth field artillery, is the holder of the eastern intercollegiate heavyweight wrestling championship, which has not been competed for since 1917, when Baldrige clinched his claim against the best men of Harvard, Princeton, Pennsylvania, Dartmouth and other eastern schools. He is a Yale man, played tackle on the 1916 eleven, and still is eligible for another year on the varsity when the war is over.

First Lieutenant Robert A. Gardner of the same regiment won the national golf title in 1915, and took the intercollegiate pole vault championship for several years, his record as a pole vaulter being 13 feet 1 inch.

"Chuck" Lann, now in training at the officers' training camp, and a selected service private, was the almost unanimous selection of western critics as a member of the all-western and all-conference football eleven last fall, he having played on the Iowa team.

Lieut. Virgil Rector, who plays center on the officers' basketball team, can do better than 12 feet at the pole vault, is a crack high jumper and won his letter at Dartmouth in football, basketball and track.

Capt. Paul R. Morrissey, divisional insurance officer, is holder of the regular army championship as a swordsman, which he won in competition in 1915. He holds the highest pistol shot and rifleman mark.

When Mike O'Dowd of St. Paul arrives at the camp late this month the division will have the two leading middleweights of the country in O'Dowd and Mike Gibbons, boxing instructor.

Pitcher Sheehan, formerly a member of Connie Mack's Athletics, is an enlisted man in one of the medical units. Art Ewold, Western league third baseman and member of the Des Moines championship team of that circuit last summer, is another Camp Dodge soldier.

First Lieutenant A. C. Potter of the Three Hundred and Thirty-seventh field artillery is a crack tennis player, a former holder of the Nebraska title, Omaha champion and runner-up for a period of several years and well up among the first 50 players in the country in national ranking for several years.

Rattlesnake Skin.

The rattle of the rattlesnake is developed from the single conical scale or epidermal spine, which in most snakes forms the internal segment of the tail. The bone on which the root of the rattle rests consists of the last caudal vertebra and is covered with a skin which is the beginning of the rattle in young rattlesnakes.

How pure these flakes must be

Things you never dreamed could be laundered

A few years ago, how you dreaded to trust your delicate things to soap and water!

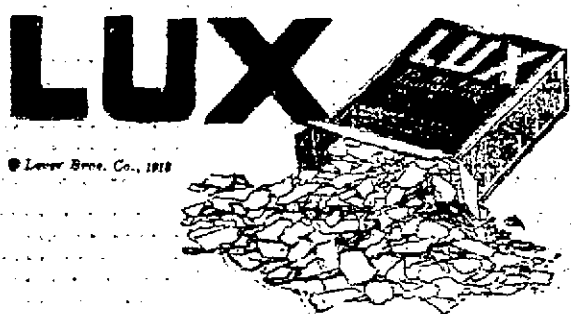

Today, who thinks of sending Georgettes to the cleaner's? or precious laces? or the most expensive sweaters? or delicate hangings? There's a better way, quicker, much less expensive.

You cleanse these things yourself—keep them like new—with Lux, the modern form of soap. Things you never dreamed could be laundered, you now trust unhesitatingly to the pure, delicate flakes which whisk up into the richest lather and cleanse without rubbing.

Without the purity of Lux, delicate and unusual things could not be trusted to even this new way of washing.

If water alone won't hurt a fabric, then Lux won't. Delicate colors come from the Lux suds as fresh as when new. If the water alone does not cause the color to "run," Lux won't injure it one degree.

Try Lux yourself. You will be delighted. Your grocer, druggist or department store has Lux. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

LAST WEEK TO MAKE INCOME-TAX RETURN

File Your Return This Week or Become Liable to the Penalty for Your Failure.

This is the last week in which income tax returns may be made, and the last week in which Deputy Internal Revenue Collectors Ward and Lefever will be at the court house to assist income taxpayers in making up their returns.

The law requires that the return must be made up and forwarded to the internal revenue collector of the district in which a person lives so that it will reach him on or before April first. For failing to make a return on time, the penalty is not less than $20 nor more than $1,000, and in addition fifty per cent of the amount of tax due. For making a false or fraudulent return the penalty is not exceeding $2,000 or not exceeding one year's imprisonment, or both, in the discretion of the court, and in addition, 100 per cent of the tax evaded.

The tax may be paid at any time on or before June 15 next, to the collector in whom the return is sent, but it may be paid in the form of certified check, post office money order or express money order at the time the return is filed. The return may be filed with Deputy Collectors Ward or Lefever at the court house this week.

Both Messrs. Ward and Lefever have been working daily from 9 o'clock every morning until 10 or 11 o'clock in the evening since coming to Kingston. Income taxpayers have been seeking information daily from Messrs. Ward and Lefever and from Mr. Darrow, who was here during January and February, but there are still a number of income taxpayers who have failed to file their return.

KINGSTON, N. Y., MARCH 28, 1918

The United States Employment Service in seeking to co-operate with farmers by ascertaining their needs and arranging for the distribution of the reserve workers among them, has asked newspapers in cities of over 20,000 population to establish co-operative farm-labor agencies under the Federal Employment Service. This is a grand and glorious opportunity for newspapers in such cities to get in the spotlight. The Freeman has no intention of glorifying itself in that way. It prefers instead to serve the country by aiding the Ulster County Farm Bureau, which maintains such an agency here, and space in The Freeman will be at the command of the regular agency, as it always has been. If the attitude of The Freeman were otherwise, it would feel that it was occupying a preposterous position of attempting to do work of a special character for which it is not qualified and in addition would be duplicating work now being done by a regular farm agency, which, to say the least, would be confusing. For this reason The Freeman considers its patriotic and self-evident duty to be the hearty assistance of competent people now engaged in the work requested instead of mixing things up in the manner stated. In sections unfortunate enough not to have a Farm Bureau or similar agency capable of helping in the distribution of farm labor, the plan of the United States Employment Service may be feasible, but no such condition exists here. The Employment Service, the farmer and the available farm laborer should avoid inexperienced sources and instead consult the farm and the farm labor expert.

WAKENING DREAMERS.

If England and France can hold the German line until the United States get fully under way in our war program, there can be no doubt about the ultimate outcome of the war, and we will not then be in the danger to which Senator Lodge referred in the Senate debate on Tuesday when he said "we may be fighting before very long for our very existence as an independent nation." The hope must arise in every mind that the Allies can continue to hold the Hun without materially weakening themselves until we get caught up with our war work.

The cosmopolitan blood which blends traits of all nations gives to the American a different character from any other nation, but one characteristic which predominates is an insistent desire for facts. In that respect the American shows traits which we pronounce inquisitiveness, but whose existence is best proved by the ever increasing demand for live newspapers—we want the news, the facts, because it is our nature to want to know the what and the why of everything. Once in possession of the truth, Americans act with decision quickly. Therefore, Senator Lodge made no mistake when he said: "The only relief that I can see is to appeal to the spirit of the American people. You cannot do that if you deceive them. Tell them the truth. Let them know the dangers and the perils in which they are; that we are fighting for freedom, for civilization, for all that makes life worth living, and that we may be fighting before very long for our very existence as an independent nation. It is no time to deceive ourselves. Let us look facts in the face."

The average American has not been fooling himself; he has been dissatisfied with the slowness with which America has moved in many of the essentials since our entrance in the war, and his dissatisfaction has been evidenced by the eagerness with which he has bought Liberty bonds, undertaken necessary sacrifices, subscribed to philanthropies that are practically an additional arm of the Government and performed many other things necessary to speed up the American fighting force. Sometimes he has been influenced by the bombastic talk which delights to picture one unarmed American licking ten armed men of any other nation with one hand tied behind his back. Such talk has come from the William J. Bryan type, but it has carried some weight, nevertheless. Sometimes the average American has been influenced by the lack of activity by our legislators and political leaders whose insistence that no action must be taken until it has had free and full discussion is characteristic of the hair-splitting breed of misconceived jabbers whose egotism does not permit them to see beyond the limits allowed by a chronic condition of mental strabismus.

Our draft law, as Senator Lodge admits, has been well administered. "We got the men; we can get more men; but, apart from that, what have we to show in accomplishment?" So far as airplane production is concerned, the reason why we have not been able to get one airplane to our forces in France remains a mystery. Production of motors for the planes has been on a par with the planes themselves. Only two American air ships have been produced. From time to time there have been complaints from manufacturers that work was being delayed because plans were being held up or recalled for inconsequential changes which afterward were abandoned in favor of the original plan, and repeatedly there has been a question of the wisdom of delaying manufacture of guns and munitions of English and French patterns which the war has shown to be entirely satisfactory. It is best, of course, to enter a combat with conditions ideal; the only trouble is to keep the other fellow inactive until conditions become ideal, and the Hun refused to wait until that time.

Chairman Edward N. Hurley, of the United States Shipping Board, has explained the tremendous odds against the United States shipbuilding program when we learned officially that there were not enough ships in existence to transport American troops, munitions and supplies to France. Politics for a number of years has worked to the disadvantage of American shipbuilding so that when we awoke to the necessity of building ships we found it necessary first to build shipyards. A majority of these yards are nearing completion, but the most serious situation is the inability to supply turbines and engines promptly. "Shipping is the essence of the struggle in which the world is now engaged," he says, "the central beam in the whole war structure. If that fails, all else fails. We are engaged in a race with the submarine."

America has been too self-centered. We have been wealthy and through possession of wealth we have depended too largely on our ability to buy what we wanted; we could buy what was ready-made because we had the price. Now that we realize our dependence on other nations through the shutting off of supplies, including ships, we are beginning to develop our own resources, but in most respects we must begin at the beginning. We are engaged in a race not only with the submarine but with the Hun himself for control of our own land. Whoever at such a time delays by one day the necessary work in any particular or encourages delay, by strikes, by windjamming, by duplication of work, by failure to perform his or her individual duty, is as traitorous to America as though actually in the employ of the Hun. It is not a time to mince words with that class or to handle them with kid gloves. Neither is it a time to lull people to a false sense of security. Give them the truth and they will not only handle the Hun-loving traitor but will overcome the obstacles which either guilelessly or guiltily are obstructing the American preparations for fighting for our liberty.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

"Why do you apply for employment?" "I'm an unusual girl. No one understands me." "I'm afraid you won't do for telephone work, my dear child."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Blue Sky Promoters.

Blue sky promoters are men so optimistic where other people's money is concerned that they will promote not merely barren gold and silver mines, but the blue sky itself.

Postmaster General Hitchcock was talking about a blue sky promoter who had been convicted of fraud.

"This man's mine," he said, "reminded me in its scarcity of gold of the railway sandwich."

"There ain't no ham in this here sandwich," a man growled, seated on a high stool before the marble bar of an old fashioned railway restaurant.

"Oh, you ain't come to the ham yet," the attendant answered calmly.

"The man ate on a while longer. Then he growled again:

"There ain't no ham yet!"

"Oh," said the attendant, "you've bit over it now."—New York Tribune.

Other Times, Other Measures.

Early in the week a visitor to one of the minor officers of a leading railroad company noticed that his friend was using a scratch pad composed of old envelopes that had been salvaged after the removal of the mail; also that he was using quite an ordinary lead pencil, and his curiosity became aroused.

"Has the Save Everything Administration taken charge here, too?" he inquired. "When I was here last year I had a pad of fine linen paper, and a Koh-i-noor pencil."

"We have learned," explained the official, "that our men give efficient work on such scrap and with such pencils, just as they formerly did with gold pointed pencils and bond paper. We are keeping step with the times."—Wall Street Journal.

A Misreading.

Cleveland Moffett of the Citizens' Vigilance Committee of New York said at a luncheon:

"What was the text?" her father asked the little girl as he carved the Sunday roast.

"Oh, papa," she said in a shocked voice, "it was—Abdomen. Abdomen, my son Abdomen!"—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Get all-wool---it's economy

You know how important a factor in your affairs your clothes are, but you probably don't think much about it except when you're buying them; and then a man's quite apt to think more about what the clothes cost than about what they are.

This season "what they are", will be the vital question. You've heard a lot about the excessive cost of wool; the facts about it are a good deal more real than the words about it.

But the result of high-priced wool shows in one of two ways; either your clothes will have less wool in them or you'll have to pay more for them. If you buy cheap clothes that means you don't care for all wool; there's no way to get all-wool now at "cheap" prices.

We're here in this business to be of service to you; and service to you means, as we understand it, supplying clothes that are best for you.

That means Hart Schaffner & Marx clothes; and we're ready to show you the Spring suits and overcoats we have for you.

DAMAGE CASE ON IN SUPREME COURT

Michael De Cicco Sues the Beardslee—Plaintiff Was Riding in Sisco's Car and Claims that Defendant's Car Collide With It.

Case No. 95 was begun in supreme court here this morning. This is an action for $500.00 damage brought by Michael De Cicco, justice of the peace, of East Kingston against E. C.

Beardslee and Hattie M. Beardslee, of Delaware county.

The facts, as alleged in the complaint, are substantially as follows: On July 15, 1917, at 2:45 p. m. the plaintiff was riding on the Kingston-Saugerties state road, in an automobile as the guest of John Sisco.

The defendants were riding in an automobile owned by them and driven by Earl M. Beardslee.

The plaintiff claims that the defendants in a negligent and careless manner attempted to pass car in which plaintiff was riding, collided with and upset it, throwing plaintiff and the other occupants out.

Plaintiff claims injuries to his arm, left shoulder and back.

Andrew J. Cook is appearing for the plaintiff; Judge William D. Brinnier, Jr., for the defendant.

Mr. Cook in his opening address to the jury, stated that the accident was due entirely to the negligence of Beardslee.

According to Mr. Cook, De Cicco was riding in the car with John Sisco, Mrs. Sisco and four children.

At the point where the incident occurred, near the house of Granville Paion, a wagon drawn by one horse was coming towards Kingston.

Beardslee attempted to pass in the space between the wagon and Sisco's car, and collided with it.

Beardslee's car was going at the rate of twenty to thirty miles an hour.

Defence in the Case.

Mr. Brinnier in his opening address to the jury, stated that Beardslee passed Sisco's car without colliding with same, and that there was no mark on Sisco's car to substantiate the claim of the collision.

After Beardslee passed Sisco's car he heard some one holler and going back he found Sisco's car ditched.

Plaintiff is Called.

Justice DeCicco, the plaintiff, was the first witness called. He gave his version of the incident.

He was subjected to a severe cross-examination by Judge Brinnier.

Mr. Hornbeck Testifies.

Marvin Hornbeck of Saugerties testified that he was driving a wagon on this road and day in question, and that Beardslee, while attempting to pass between the wagon and the Sisco car, collided with the car and ditched it.

Ernest Decker of Saugerties testified that he was riding in the wagon with Hornbeck. Decker's testimony was along the same lines as Hornbeck's.

A number of other witnesses were called.

The case may be finished today.

Other Cases Disposed Of.

In Cases 90, 91 and 92, an order was entered dismissing the complaints.

Case 119 was announced as settled.

In Case 67, the complaint was dismissed.

An inquest was taken in Case 75, Con. Ros. Cement Company, against Builders' Brick and Supply Company, and a verdict of $961.74 awarded to the plaintiff.

A Good Record.

To date 33 cases have been disposed of at the March term. They were cases 12, 24, 27, 34, 4, 10, 12, 24, 27, 22, 14, 19, 42, 55, 63, 67, 71, 75, 76, 90, 91, 92, 95, 102, 112, 135, 136, 110, 68, 88, 119, 128, 130.

New York's Fire Bells.

Once, and up to a day within the memory of living men, New York had its fire bells. Eleven of them were hung in wooden towers about Manhattan. GREATER ACTIVITY
ON AMERICAN FRONT

American officers are in Albert District gaining practical experience in trench warfare.

By Telegram to The Freeman. With the American Army in France, March 27.—(6 p. m.)—Observers on the American front north of Toul have noted an increase in the activity of the German infantry during the past 24 hours.

Numerous parties of the enemy were seen passing and repassing certain points, entering or leaving dugouts and traversing communication trenches. Others were seen entering or leaving battery positions or passing through villages.

American gunners shelled all points where enemy troop movements were reported, sending over gas shells, shrapnel and high explosives.

Farther back American sharpshooters were busy sniping the Germans with 37 millimetre guns, observers reporting many direct hits on dugout entrances. The continued harassing fire drew an outburst from German guns when 200 high explosive shells were suddenly thrown against a certain American position.

The flashes of the German guns could be seen from an American captive balloon which was on night observation duty.

There has been little aerial activity as the Germans have evidently sent most of their machines to the scene of their offensive.

A certain number of American officers who are attached to British regiments to learn the latest methods of trench warfare are in the Albert district. It is indicated by post cards received from them by their friends on the Toul front.

(Albert has been the scene of heavy fighting in the German offensive in Picardy. The German war office in its official report on Wednesday claimed the capture of Albert. This was borne out by the British war office which said: "Attempts made by the enemy in the course of the day to debouch westward from the town of Albert have been driven back in each instance with the heaviest of losses.")

Some of the cards were illustrated, bearing photographs of the statue of the Saviour on the stele of the Albert Church. Since 1916 when it was struck by a German shell the statue has been leaning over at an angle of 45 degrees.

Many American gas officers are included among those attached to the British for active training.

The German advance over the Somme battlefield recalls July, 1916, when the Foreign Legion stormed Belvoir-Santerre, several American volunteers being killed at the time and others wounded. The English Black Watch Regiment, containing many Americans also took a prominent part in the fighting around places which are again appearing in the official communications.

So far the Americans have not received any information that the Germans are using tanks.

(A semi-official announcement was made in Berlin on Wednesday that the Germans were using their own tanks as well as others captured from the British.)

News that has reached the American front indicated that the enemy had achieved success solely through weight of artillery and the masses of infantry obtained by stripping other parts of the front.

PARCEL POST TO FRANCE LIMITED

No More Packages May be Mailed to Soldiers Abroad Except on Request Approved by an Officer.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Washington, March 25.—The recent war department order curtailing shipments to members of the American expeditionary force was taken "only to meet a most urgent war necessity," Major General Patton C. March, acting chief of staff, explained today, and was based on the recommendation of General Pershing.

"On account of the well known shortage in shipping," said General March, "it has been found necessary to limit shipments to France to things absolutely essential to the fighting efficiency of our forces there."

"Shipment of parcels to individual officers and soldiers have reached the enormous proportion of an average of 250 tons a week, and by reason of their bulk have displaced a great amount of important army freight on commercial liners and transports."

"Shipments of articles to members of the American expeditionary force will be limited to those articles required by individuals to whom they are to be given, these requests having been approved by the commanding officer."

"It will be seen from these instructions that the war department does not mean to prohibit shipments by relatives and friends of needed articles to members of our army in France, but to restrict the shipment to the needs of the individual, as he requires them."

"In this manner the amount of shipments of such articles will be under the control of those in authority, yet will deprive no person of any needed articles. This action is taken only to meet a most urgent war necessity."

The text of the order is as follows. "In future shipments of any articles to members of the American expeditionary force abroad will be limited to those articles which have been requested by the individual to whom same is to be shipped, such request having been approved by his regimental or higher commander. Parcel post shipments will be accepted by the post office authorities and other shipments by express or freight companies only upon presentation of the above approved request in each individual case."

Wood's Lasting Qualities.

Wood is almost an imperishable substance and if kept from attacks of organisms, both animal and vegetable, will practically last forever. The heart wood in living trees is as thoroughly lifeless as the average fence post or timber lying in a lumber yard, but is usually protected by the outward bark. When insects and disease find entrance through holes or cracks a hollow tree usually results and the decay or destruction is as rapid as though not inside living bark.

Prehistoric Skull Borings.

The operation called "trephining," by which a button of skull is removed, is regarded in these modern days as very hazardous, and to be attempted only as a last resort. But the ancient Peruvians, centuries before Columbus landed, practiced it very commonly. Of 1,000 of their skulls, recently obtained by the United States bureau of ethnology from prehistoric caves and cemeteries, nearly 2 per cent had been trephined for some cause.

BIG TITLE HOLDERS
ARE AT CAMP DODGE

Athletes of Renown at Iowa Cantonment in Service.

Champions of Various Descriptions Would Make Hard Proposition in Almost Any Kind of Dual Contest—Caddock There.

Champions of various descriptions are becoming so numerous at Camp Dodge that one more or less no longer attracts attention.

Earl Caddock, who upheld his claims as champion heavyweight wrestler of the world in his match with Zosko recently, is only one of a galaxy of stellar athletes at Camp Dodge, and the cautionment would be a hard proposition in almost any kind of a dual contest.

Capt. Malcolm Baldrige of battery F, Three Hundred and Thirty-eighth field artillery, is the holder of the eastern intercollegiate heavyweight wrestling championship, which has not been competed for since 1917, when Baldrige clinched his claim against the best men of Harvard, Princeton, Pennsylvania, Dartmouth and other eastern schools. He is a Yale man, played tackle on the 1916 eleven, and still is eligible for another year on the varsity when the war is over.

First Lieutenant Robert A. Gardner of the same regiment won the national golf title in 1915, and took the intercollegiate pole vault championship for several years, his record as a pole vaulter being 13 feet 1 inch.

"Chuck" Laun, now in training at the officers' training camp, and a selected service private, was the almost unanimous selection of western critics as a member of the all-western and all-conference football eleven last fall he having played on the Iowa team.

Lieut. Virgil Rector, who plays center on the officers' basketball team can do better than 12 feet at the pole vault, is a crack high jumper and won his letter at Dartmouth in football, basketball and track.

Capt. Paul R. Morrissey, divisional insurance officer, is holder of the regular army championship as a swordsman, which he won in competition in 1915. He holds the highest pistol shot and rifleman mark.

When Mike O'Dowd of St. Paul arrives at the camp late this month the division will have the two leading middleweights of the country in O'Dowd and Mike Gibbons, boxing instructor.

Pitcher Sheehan, formerly a member of Connie Mack's Athletics, is an enlisted man in one of the medical units. Art Ewoldt, Western league third baseman and member of the Des Moines championship team of that circuit last summer, is another Camp Dodge soldier.

First Lieutenant A. C. Potter of the Three Hundred and Thirty-seventh field artillery is a crack tennis player, a former holder of the Nebraska title, Omaha champion and runner-up for a period of several years and well up among the first 50 players in the country in national ranking for several years.

Rattlesnake Skin.

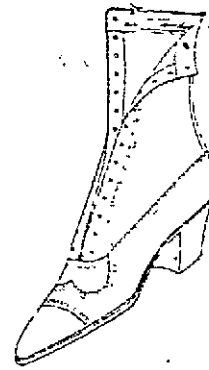

The rattle of the rattlesnake is developed from the single conical scale or epidermal spine, which in most snakes forms the internal segment of the tail. The bone on which the rattle rests consists of the last caudal vertebra and is covered with a skin which is the beginning of the rattle in young rattlesnakes.

SPIDER'S ARREST WAS OPPORTUNE

Jail Chief's Time Expired Today and Mr. McMahon Registering at County Hotel Will Be Just in Time to Assume Job.

John McMahon, more widely known as "Spider" was arrested Wednesday on a charge of public intoxication by Seth Jocelyn of the sheriff's office. Spider had only been released from jail a very short time, and his arrest at this time was most opportune as he will have a chance to show what he can do as chef at the county hotel where he has ably filled the same job many times before.

It develops that he regular chef's time expired today. Spider this morning was sentenced to thirty days at the county hotel by Judge Schirlick in the police court and reached jail just in time to officiate for dinner.

Spider said he had a number of old friends in the jail serving time. He has an artificial leg as he lost one of his legs years ago on Ferry street when run over by a train. During the sixty or more years he has spent on this earth Spider has had a wide and varied career. He received his nickname while serving before the last years ago, and the cognomen has stuck.

In the palmy days of the old D. & H. canal he boated for years, and said he had read in the Freeman where they were trying to reopen the canal but he said he had his doubts.

Spider was happy when he heard the sentence of thirty days for he was fearful it might have been heavier.

When asked how many times he had been arrested he was unable to remember it had been so many.

Lake Katrine Grange.

The regular meeting of Lake Katrine Grange was held in the grange rooms on Monday evening, March 18. The meeting was a very interesting one as there were discussions on several important bills to come before the state legislature.

Mr. McCormick, master of Pomona Grange of Ulster county, was present and gave an excellent talk, dealing with the work of the grange, legislative, community work, etc. He told many amusing anecdotes and was heartily applauded at the close of his address.

Several important committees were appointed and business of importance transacted. The literary program prepared by Abram Reil, the lecturer, was an excellent one and was as follows:

Violin Solo—"A Medley."
Reading—"Wesley G. Parish Reading—'Pruning Small Fruits.'"
Chorus—"My Old Kentucky Home."
By the Grange
Reading—"My Auto 'Tis of Thee."
Reading—"Things to do in the Orchard Now."
David Kieffer
Poem—"The Irish Pickle."
By the Lecturer
Reading—"Hard Earned Wages."
C. E. Davis
Poem—"A Plain Man's Lyrics."
Anna Kieffer
Chorus—"Just Before the Battle Mother."

Cross on the Moon.

Several persons claimed to have seen a cross on the moon early Tuesday evening. They say it was a beautiful sight. There was a bright, full moon, the beauty of which was enhanced by the brilliant rays of light of a clearly defined cross. This is the third time within the last few months that a cross has appeared on the moon and there is much speculation as to its meaning.

Port Ewen, March 28.—Private Harold Ellsworth, Co. C, 308th Machine Gun Battalion, Cam Dix, N. J., who has spent his three day furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Ellsworth, of South Broadway, returned to Camp Dix Wednesday morning. Mr. Ellsworth looks fine, has gained 18 lbs and in conversation with Private Ellsworth learned he has a clean record, not one blot against him. He likes the life, especially the disciplinary training and rigid enforcement. He is anxious to go "over there" and fire several shots at the Kaiser.

The golden jubilee celebration to be held at Pythian Hall on Friday night of this week, under the auspices of Hope Lodge, still continues to occupy the attention of our citizens. Those who are the recipients of an invitation to attend this meeting may be considered fortunate. The lodge has received the consent of the Rev. E. A. Bookhout and George Propheer, the latter a member of the lodge, to deliver addresses. The pleasure of listening to these gentlemen and the social effect should animate all who attend. Do not fail to take advantage of the opportunity.

At the annual conference supper of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist Church $43.25 was the amount cleared.

House cleaning seems to be the prevailing element in our village at present.

Prayer service will be held in the Methodist Chapel this evening at 7:30 o'clock. Theme, "Over the Top." Everybody invited.

The Epworth League Society gave a reception to the Rev. Eugene A. Bookhout, Mrs. Bookhout and son, Cazlyn, Wednesday evening in the chapel of the Methodist Church. There was a large number of the league members present.

Bookhout; instrumental solo, Miss Mary Neal; reading, selected, Miss Ella Lapine; address, appropriate to the occasion, by Fourth Vice-President of the league Miss Mary P. Bishop; presentation of bouquet of carnations with vase to Mrs. Eugene A. Bookhout, by President of League Samuel P. Tinnit; responded to very graciously by Mrs. Bookhout. Refreshments were served, after which all joined hands and sang "Blest be the Tie That Binds." The meeting was a very pleasant one and the members present were sorry to think of parting with our pastor and his family, but our loss is some other church's gain. His stay among us has been pleasant and helpful and good seed has been sown.

Special Violin Music.

There will be attractive music at both services in the St. James Methodist Episcopal Church, on Easter Sunday. On Sunday night, at the popular service, Professor Harcourt, who early in the winter delighted a large audience, will assist the choir, rendering some violin solos. Mr. Harcourt is a well known Albany musician who was formerly the leader of a large orchestra in that city. At the said service Dr. Baragwanath will bring a short but appropriate message.

MANY BREAKS FOUND.

Water Board Kept Busy Repairing Breaks in Pipes.

Wednesday afternoon a break in the water main on North Front street, near the Bernstein store, was discovered by Officer Hess and reported to the water board. Sunday another break on Fair street, near the Burgevin building, was found and reported.

The water board has been kept on the jump repairing the numberless small leaks that are being discovered. The break in the big eight inch water main on top of the Hasbrouck avenue hill near the U. & D. tunnel, is being repaired.

A New Call to Prayer.

The serious fighting in France by soldiers who are waging our war demands that we as a nation do all in our power to aid them. In this we also hear a new call to prayer. The services this Holy Week should be crowded with eager and humble worshippers. It is said that the churches of London last Sunday were thronged. There will be two special union services uptown this week, Thursday evening in St. James's Church, when Dr. Looper will speak, and Friday evening in the First Dutch Church, when there will be a union communion service. The people of these three uniting churches are urged to attend both nights, for it is a time when first things should be placed first.

KINGSTON, N. Y., MARCH 28, 1918

The United States Employment Service in seeking to co-operate with farmers by ascertaining their needs and arranging for the distribution of the reserve workers among them, has asked newspapers in cities of over 20,000 population to establish co-operative farm-labor agencies under the Federal Employment Service. This is a grand and glorious opportunity for newspapers in such cities to get in the spotlight. The Freeman has no intention of glorifying itself in that way. It prefers instead to serve the country by aiding the Ulster County Farm Bureau, which maintains such an agency here, and space in The Freeman will be at the command of the regular agency, as it always has been. If the attitude of The Freeman were otherwise, it would feel that it was occupying a preposterous position of attempting to do work of a special character for which it is not qualified and in addition would be duplicating work now being done by a regular farm agency, which, to say the least, would be confusing. For this reason The Freeman considers its patriotic and self-evident duty to be the hearty assistance of competent people now engaged in the work requested instead of mixing things up in the manner stated. In sections unfortunate enough not to have a Farm Bureau or similar agency capable of helping in the distribution of farm labor, the plan of the United States Employment Service may be feasible, but no such condition exists here. The Employment Service, the farmer and the available farm laborer should avoid inexperienced sources and instead consult the farm and the farm labor expert.

WAKENING DREAMERS.

If England and France can hold the German line until the United States get fully under way in our war program, there can be no doubt about the ultimate outcome of the war, and we will not then be in the danger in which Senator Lodge referred in the Senate debate on Tuesday when he said "we may be fighting before very long for our very existence as an independent nation." The hope must arise in every mind that the Allies can continue to hold the Hun without materially weakening themselves until we get caught up with our war work.

The cosmopolitan blood which blends traits of all nations gives to the American a different character from any other nation, but one characteristic which predominates is an insistent desire for facts. In that respect the American shows traits which we pronounce inquisitiveness, but whose existence is best proved by the ever increasing demand for live newspapers—we want the news, the facts, because it is our nature to want to know the what and the why of everything. Once in possession of the truth, Americans act with decision quickly. Therefore, Senator Lodge made no mistake when he said, "The only relief that I can see is to appeal to the spirit of the American people. You cannot do that if you deceive them. Tell them the truth. Let them know the dangers and the perils in which they are; that we are fighting for freedom, for civilization, for all that makes life worth living, and that we may be fighting before very long for our very existence as an independent nation. It is no time to deceive ourselves. Let us look facts in the face."

The average American has not been fooling himself; he has been diseased with the slowness with which America has moved in many of the essentials since our entrance in the war, and his dissatisfaction has been evidenced by the eagerness with which he has bought Liberty bonds, undertaken necessary sacrifices, subscribed to philanthropies that are practically an additional arm of the Government and performed many other things necessary to speed up the American fighting force. Sometimes he has been influenced by the bombastic talk which delights to picture one unarmed American fighting ten armed men of any other nation with one hand tied behind his back. Such talk has come from the William J. Bryan type, but it has carried some weight, nevertheless. Sometimes the average American has been influenced by the lack of activity by our legislators and political leaders whose insistence that no action must be taken until it has had free and full discussion is characteristic of the half-splitting breed of misconceived jabberers whose egotism does not permit them to see beyond the limits allowed by a chronic condition of mental strabismus.

Our draft law, as Senator Lodge admits, has been well administered. "We got the men; we can get more men, but apart from that, what have we to show in accomplishment?" So far as airplane production is concerned, the reason why we have not been able to get one airplane to our forces in France remains a mystery. Production of motors for the planes has been on a par with the planes themselves. Only two American air ships have been produced. From time to time there have been complaints from manufacturers that work was being delayed because plans were being held up or recalled for inconsequential changes which afterward were abandoned in favor of the original plan, and repeatedly there has been a question of the wisdom of delaying manufacture of guns and munitions of English and French patterns which the war has shown to be entirely satisfactory. It is best, of course, to enter a combat with conditions ideal; the only trouble is to keep the other fellow inactive until conditions become ideal, and the Hun refused to wait until that time.

Chairman Edward N. Hurley, of the United States Shipping Board, has explained the tremendous odds against the United States shipbuilding program when we learned officially that there were not enough ships in existence to transport American troops, munitions and supplies to France. Politics for a number of years has worked to the disadvantage of American shipbuilding so that when we awoke to the necessity of building ships we found it necessary first to build shipyards. A majority of these yards are nearing completion, but the most serious situation is the inability to supply turbines and engines promptly. "Shipping is the essence of the struggle in which the world is now engaged," he says, "the central beam in the whole war structure. If that fails, all else fails. We are engaged in a race with the submarine."

America has been too self-centered. We have been wealthy and through possession of wealth we have depended too largely on our ability to buy what we wanted; we could buy what was ready-made because we had the price. Now that we realize our dependence on other nations through the shutting off of supplies, including ships, we are beginning to develop our own resources, but in most respects we must begin at the beginning. We are engaged in a race not only with the submarine but with the Hun himself for control of our own land. Whoever at such a time delays by one day the necessary work in any particular or encourages delay, by strikes, by windjamming, by duplication of work, by failure to perform his or her individual duties as traitorous to America as though actually in the employ of the Hun. It is not a time to mince words with that class or to handle them with kid gloves. Neither is it a time to lull people to a false sense of security. Give them the truth and they will not only handle the Hun-loving traitor but will overcome the obstacles which either guilelessly or guiltily are obstructing the American preparations for fighting for our liberty.

Blue Sky Promoters.

Blue sky promoters are men so optimistic where other people's money is concerned that they will promote not merely barren gold and silver mines, but the blue sky itself.

Postmaster General Hitchcock was talking about a blue sky promoter who had been convicted of fraud. "This man's mine," he said, "reminded me in its scarcity of gold of the railway sandwich."

"There ain't no ham in this here sandwich," a man growled, seated on a high stool before the marble bar of an old fashioned railway restaurant.

"Oh, you ain't come to the ham yet," the attendant answered calmly. "The man ate on a while longer. Then he growled again."

"There ain't no ham yet!" "Oh," said the attendant, "you've bit over it now."—New York Tribune.

Other Times, Other Measures.

Early in the week a visitor to one of the minor officers of a leading railroad company noticed that his friend was using a scratch pad composed of old envelopes that had been salvaged after the removal of the mail, also that he was using quite an ordinary lead pencil, and his curiosity became aroused.

"Has the Save Everything, Administration taken charge here, too?" he inquired. "When I was here last you had a pad of fine linen paper, and a Koh-i-noor pencil."

"We have learned," explained the official, "that our men give efficient work on such scrap and with such pencils, just as they formerly did

Get all-wool---it's economy

You know how important a factor in your affairs your clothes are, but you probably don't think much about it except when you're buying them; and then a man's quite apt to think more about what the clothes cost than about what they are.

This season "what they are", will be the vital question. You've heard a lot about the excessive cost of wool; the facts about it are a good deal more real than the words about it.

But the result of high-priced wool shows in one of two ways; either your clothes will have less wool in them or you'll have to pay more for them. If you buy cheap clothes that means you don't care for all wool; there's no way to get all-wool now at "cheap" prices.

We're here in this business to be of service to you; and service to you means, as we understand it, supplying clothes that are best for you.

That means Hart Schaffner & Marx clothes; and we're ready to show you the Spring suits and overcoats we have for you.

HOMEMADE BREAD RAISER HELPS ON BAKING DAY.

Converted Dry Goods Box, Warmed by Oil Lamp or Electric Light, Provides Proper Temperature for Bread Raising.

SUGAR: PRODUCE MORE AND SUBSTITUTE, ADVISE SPECIALISTS.

Satisfactory substitutes for sugar may be used to a much larger extent, says a paragraph in the department of agriculture's agricultural production program for 1918, which will be of interest to the housewife. While urging maintenance of the average of sugar cane and sugar beets and increasing where those crops are well established or are necessary to sound agricultural practice, the program states that an extensive increase in 1918 is not possible because of the time required to grow seed cane stock and because of the limited amount of beet seed available.

The larger use of sorghum, corn and cane sirup, maple sugar and sirup, and honey is urged. The maple sirup and sugar production can and should be increased in those areas in which maple trees are growing in sufficient numbers to warrant the expenditure of the necessary time and labor. Maple sirup and sugar are produced in 15 states, the annual output exceeding 14,000,000 pounds of sugar and 4,000,000 gallons of sirup. Those figures can be increased. The production of sorghum sirup in 1917 exceeded that in 1916 by nearly 4,000,000 gallons. Sorghum sirup may be produced in nearly every state in the Union, and an increased production of sorghum sirup will enable the public still further to conserve the sugar supply in the most available form for transportation to our soldiers.

BREAD BOX HELP TO HOUSEKEEPER

Device Is Easily Constructed and Removes Uncertainty of Baking.

ASBESTOS BEST FOR LINING

Thermometer Enables Baker to Obtain Desired Temperature—Specialists Advise Production of More Sugar Crops.

War kitchens must be efficient. Conveniences will help make them so.

A home-made sponge box or bread raiser will help make the bread better. It enables the housekeeper to keep her sponge or dough at the right temperature so that it will rise in less time. A sponge box or bread-raiser, therefore, takes much of the uncertainty out of bread-baking. It can be made from an ordinary dry goods packing box.

Placing the Shelves.
A box 26 by 20 by 20 inches is a convenient size. About 10 inches from the bottom of the box a shelf made of slats or strips of wood rests on cleats fastened to the sides of the box. A second shelf is placed four inches above the lower one. The shelves can be removed when cleaning the box. Below the lower shelf a sheet of galvanized iron slightly wider than the shelf is inserted. It is curved in order to make it slip in and stay in place securely. This prevents scorching of the lower shelf when a lamp is placed below, and also helps to distribute the heat more evenly. The door is hinged and fastened with a thumb-latch or hook and staple.

Several small holes are bored in the lower and upper parts of the sides and in the top of the box to promote circulation of air. A cork which has been bored through the center to admit a straight thermometer is inserted in one of the holes in the top of the box. A Fahrenheit chemical thermometer that registers as high as 100 degrees can be used. Such a thermometer may be ordered through a hardware dealer or directly from an instrument dealer.

Make Safe From Fire.
To avoid all danger of fire, the box should be lined with asbestos or tin when a kerosene lamp is used for heating the box. If an electric light is used, the lining is not necessary. A 16-candlepower light will heat the box nicely. A small and inexpensive night lamp is placed in the bottom of the box and a shallow pan of water is placed on the lower shelf so that the air in the box will be kept moist.

The bowl of sponge or pans of dough are placed on the upper shelf. The temperature of the box should be kept as near 86 degrees Fahrenheit as possible (80 to 88 degrees Fahrenheit) when bread is being made in the quick way. If a sponge is set overnight 65 to 70 degrees Fahrenheit is the better temperature until the dough is made in the morning, after which the temperature may be increased to 86 degrees Fahrenheit. The temperature in the box may be varied by raising or lowering the flame of the lamp or by using warm or cold water in the shallow pan.

Filter Peanut Oil at Home.
Unrefined peanut oil can be prepared for household use by filtering through ordinary filter paper obtainable at drug stores. A Georgia woman, the wife of an oil miller, had been paying her grocer nearly $2 a gallon for cooking oil while her husband sold his unrefined oil to a refinery for about $1.20 a gallon. She sent a small sample of the oil from her husband's mill to the bureau of chemistry of the United States department of agriculture with the request that, if possible, she be told of a method by which it could be made suitable for household use. The filter paper method was suggested. In a letter which came to the department later the success of the method was described as "surpassing my best expectations."

Sour Cream Salad Dressing.
Potatoes can be used to advantage in many ways in the school lunch. Potato salad is one way. The attractiveness of the salad depends largely on the dressing used. A good dressing can be made as follows:

1/2 teaspoonful mustard, 1/2 teaspoonful sugar, 1 egg, 1/2 teaspoonful salt, 1/2 cupful vinegar, 1/2 teaspoonful paprika, 1 cupful sour cream.

Beat the egg until very light, add the other ingredients, and cook in a double boiler, stirring constantly until thickened. Remove from the fire and heat well. If this dressing is cooked properly, it will have, when cool, a thick, smooth consistency. If it is overcooked, so that there is a tendency to separate, it should be strained before cooling.

Oatmeal Cookies for Lunches.
Oatmeal cookies, a wholesome and wholesome sweet for the school lunch, may be made of one egg, one-third cupful granulated sugar, one cupful rolled oats, two teaspoonfuls melted fat, one-fourth teaspoonful salt. Beat the egg, add sugar gradually, and stir in other ingredients. Drop a spoonful at a time on a well-greased tin and bake in a moderate oven.

Milk Is Good as Meat.
If milk is 10 cents a quart it is as cheap a protein food as sirloin steak at 22.9 cents a pound or eggs at 27.9 cents a dozen. At 12 cents a quart it is as cheap as sirloin steak selling at 27.4 cents a pound or eggs at 33.5 cents a dozen. To supply energy at equal cost when milk is 10 cents a quart, sirloin steak must not be more than 14.2 cents a pound, and eggs not more than 18.3 cents a dozen.

Classifying the Jury.
Counsel (addressing jury): "The principal fault of the prisoner has been his unfortunate character, a lot of putting faith in thieves and scoundrels of the basest description. I have done. The unhappy man in the dock puts implicit faith in you, gentlemen of the jury."

Differ in Views on Marriage.
When a marriage is announced, the bride's woman friend says: "I wonder why they waited so long. She was getting old and crabbed." And the groom's man friends say: "What did the blamed fool marry so early for? He'll lose the best years of his life."—Kansas City Star.

When Economy Means Better Cooking?

Women who use Mazola—the oil from Corn—are improving flavor of family meals

THE need for a pure oil from an edible, vegetable source for cooking and salad dressings, was responsible for Mazola.

And today the home cooks who use this carefully and scientifically prepared product of Indian Corn have found the secret of the most savory, the most wholesome fried and sautéed dishes and pastry, the smoothest salad dressings.

Mazola can be used and used again until every drop is gone, as it does not carry taste or odor from one food to another. It is a cooking medium that perfectly meets the demands of the thrifty housewife—quality and economy.

For sale in pints, quarts, half gallons and gallons. For greater economy buy the large sizes.

There is a valuable Cook Book for Mazola users. It shows you how to try, sauté, make dressings and sauces more delicious, make light digestible pastry. Should be in every home. Send for it or ask your grocer. FREE.

HUDSON VALLEY LEADERS WANT CANAL TERMINALS

Large Delegation in which Kingston was Well Represented Presents a Strong Case in Favor of the Walton-Brush Bill.

Albany, March 28. (Special to The Freeman.)—Ship construction at Kingston and Newburgh makes imperative the passage of the Barge Canal Terminal Act known as the Walton-Brush bill, which will virtually transform the two cities named together with Poughkeepsie and Yonkers also mentioned in the measure, into seaports and sentiment in support of that proposition was developed among members of the senate finance committee at a hearing yesterday afternoon at which representatives of the Hudson Valley presented forceful arguments in favor of immediate enactment.

Not a voice was raised in opposition to the measure and Senator Walton, its author, was more than pleased with the vigorous measure of support which came from his home city of Kingston and with the appearance of a delegation of more than 200 in outspoken insistence that the bill be passed as a war emergency proposition.

Mayor Palmer Canfield, Jr., headed the Kingston delegation and the other cities were represented by leading citizens. The hearing, which was called because of the pressure of legislative business was held in the assembly room and means committee room and to quote legislators from other sections of the state it was "some hearing" for the presentation of clear-cut facts without any surplus of oratory or other time-consuming manoeuvres.

Senator Sage presided and the different speakers were introduced by Senator Walton.

Nothing but the policy of the financial committee of the legislature which may be adhered to prevent an additional direct tax will prevent the favorable report of the bill. This statement was made, following the hearing held upon the joint measure, by Senator Henry M. Sage, chairman of the senate finance committee. That was in full accord with the provisions of the proposed legislation and believed that the Hudson river should be canalized as an adjunct to the improved barge canal, so as to make it available along its entire course, was admitted by Senator Sage. In his viewpoint, Assemblyman Machold, chairman of the ways and means committee of the assembly, joined.

Few hearings have attracted to the capitol such a galaxy of representative and influential men as came to Albany yesterday. All of the cities which are to be affected by the proposed terminals sent large delegations, including men prominent in both official and industrial life. Private manufacturing enterprises as well as the Chamber of Commerce in each of the four cities were represented and the verbal tocsin sounded was unanimous that barge canal terminals were essential for industry, the speedy termination of the war and for future expansion of transportation.

There appears to be doubt as to the fate of the bill this year, although it has not been definitely decided that it will die in committee. Lack of money in the coffers of the state and the improbability of the desired terminals being constructed within a year, because of the shortage of labor, the high price of building materials and the bad shipping facilities, were pointed out by Senator Sage as serious obstacles to the passage of the measure this session.

After he had heard the speakers, who had ardently advocated the passage of the Brush-Walton bill, Senator Sage explained that the measure had failed of passage last year because of the war.

"We believed then that it was the critical period of the world conflict," said Senator Sage. "This year the situation is just as critical. The necessity for retrenchment is such as to make the Brush-Walton bill an important part of the serious consideration. We have a bill ready which appropriates $1,000,000 with which to purchase boats for canal traffic in the event that none will be available when the completed barge canal opens. We have no assurance that there will be any boats at that time, however."

The finance committee of the legislature desire to avoid the direct tax system, moreover, it would take more than a year to build the desired terminals, for it is a difficult matter to get the necessary labor, materials and to secure transportation. These are problems which must be solved and which the finance committee have not yet solved. I believe absolutely in your project. I am not yet certain, however, whether it is wise to take the step this year. I am convinced that the Hudson should be made part of the barge canal."

Attorney William E. Fitzsimmons of Albany, representing the Hudson Valley Federation of Chambers of Commerce, was the first speaker and he outlined the barge canal terminal system as it exists today with 46 terminals on the artificial waterway and several in New York city but not one in Albany or along the great waterway between Albany and New York.

Quoting the late James J. Hill as saying that the railroads would at no time be able to come within 20 per cent of taking care of the country's traffic and pointing to water transportation as the only alternative, the speaker declared that if New York state's great waterway system was to fulfill its function that the Hudson river terminals must be built. The questions as to the bill were two, he said, one the need for the terminals and the other the availability of the expenditure at this time of war.

Mr. Fitzsimmons made a strong point of the unity of sentiment in the Hudson valley as shown by the fact that though the federation represents many communities, the entire body and, in fact, all the cities of the Hudson valley had agreed upon the four cities named in the bill as the places for the first terminals.

Newburgh, at present building fabricated steel ships of heavy tonnage; Kingston with its seven water-craft plants established; Nyack with one shipbuilding plant employing 400 men; growing industrial centers at Poughkeepsie, Peekskill and Wappingers Falls, all entered into the forceful description given by the speaker of the local conditions while on the other hand he pointed to the national need for ships, transportation of supplies including food and munitions being a vital problem at this time only to be solved by water transportation.

"The $350,000 in this bill is merely a down payment," declared Mr. Fitzsimmons in closing, "and the entire Hudson valley pays 80 per cent of the taxes of New York state, your honorable body to pass this measure and thus aid the carrying on of the war, aid the allies, relieve congestion and build up better transportation facilities in New York state."

Former Congressman Peter Ten Eyck, introduced by Senator Walton as a champion of the deeper Hudson, made a powerful plea for favorable action by the committee in approving of what was a small amount of money for a small amount of work, but which would bring tremendous benefits accruing to the Hudson valley and to the state and nation as a result. Mr. Ten Eyck was applauded heartily by the Kingston delegation as he has frequently aided that city in gaining support for the Rondout bridge project and has spoken there several times in the deeper Hudson proposition.

Not another appropriation before your honorable body at this time," he declared in closing, "is as important to the successful prosecution of the war and to the welfare of the people and the industries of New York state as this project."

The growth of Yonkers as a manufacturing center was depicted by Alexander Stolz, representing the Chamber of Commerce of that city, who was followed with close attention as he outlined the plans of that city to expend $10,000 a year to make the water front a maritime terminal. A special act now pending is approved by the legislature, he cited the developments at that point and of the unity of action between the city and county officials. He predicted two or three years more of war and declared the terminals act a paramount necessity to aid the federal government as well as the state.

Superintendent of Schools S. R. Shearer of Poughkeepsie, quoted George Washington's message of more than 100 years ago pointing to the need for an internal waterway connecting the Virginia with the Great Lakes. The terminals would perfect the waterway system of the state he said, and in themselves are as important and necessary to the canal as are freight depots to the railroads.

The coal famine could be relieved by these terminals, the speaker declared, and cited figures showing that the Dutton Lumber Company of Poughkeepsie now receives lumber there from the Pacific coast via the Panama canal at a transportation cost of $12 a thousand feet as against a freight charge of the same lumber of $24 by rail from Seattle to Chicago.

"The lumber company," he said, "can get its lumber from the Pacific coast and then ship to Chicago cheaper than the cost of the railroad freight charge across the continent."

Mayor Palmer Canfield, Jr., of Kingston, was warmly received, a point which he said showed the legislators in a more receptive mood on this proposition so important to all concerned. He told of the building of submarine chasers at Kingston, of the new shipbuilding plant there and of seven similar concerns building smaller craft. In addition, the chemical and munitions plant would benefit by the water transportation made available at their very doors.

The mayor presented a formidable list of Kingston industries which could make use of the barge canal at present. The railroads themselves, he declared, could obtain some of their supplies cheaper by water than over other lines, he said.

"The war is a great reason for the building of these terminals," said Mayor Canfield, "the abnormal and extraordinary situation presented will be the normal situation of the future. The railroads admit that the task is beyond them, their reports showing 120 millions ton more being demanded than heretofore. This is more than the ordinary traffic of the five million European nations now at war combined."

In addition, the figures of the government experts show that the loss in shipping tonnage through inadequate terminals is more than the loss from the submarines."

Mayor Canfield closed with the reading of a letter from Chairman Small of the House Rivers and Harbors Committee, to Secretary of War Baker, pointing out that water terminals must be constructed. This remark made most satisfactory brief for the Hudson valley terminals proposition, he declared, and wound up his argument with a strong appeal to the senate finance committee to meet the needs of the present grave situation by favorable action on the pending measure.

Alexander Stolz, representing the Yonkers Chamber of Commerce and Westchester county, said that all of the officials of Westchester county as well as its residents, favored the matter under consideration. He outlined the scope of the industry in Westchester county, which had grown from 37 factories and manufacturing plants, into many additional plants. He said that the city of Yonkers would pay a large portion of the expense for the construction of necessary barges.

Yonkers has 4½ miles of water front and there is before this legislature a bill for the appointment of a commission to determine the advisability of making the city a marine terminal. We have already asked the federal government to extend our bulkhead line."

When Senator Sage asked why it was that Yonkers had not been included in the original terminal plans, one of the delegates replied because the city had been asleep. This fact Senator Slater denied. He said that he had not been a member of the legislature at that time but that after he had arrived on the scene he had started something going.

Mr. Stolz added that he did not think that the war would be over before the desired terminals would have been built. He had come from France recently and it was his impression, he said, that the conflict would continue for several more years. It was his hope, he stated, that the fighting would be over before the terminals were constructed. He ended by promising that the citizens of Yonkers were willing to go deeper in their pockets if by so doing the terminal it desired could be secured.

Corporation Counsel Corwin of Newburgh declared that the need of terminals in Hudson river cities was so great that expenditure was not an essential. He said that Newburgh shipbuilding plants had contracts for the building of ships aggregating 100,000 tons, which must be completed by July 1, 1919. "We need 4,000 workmen for this task and the freight transportation problem is a serious one; later it will be critical without barge canal aid. The past few months has demonstrated that the railroads, for shipping purposes, have been inadequate. If we get terminals and the barge canal is used, the amount of freight handled would be at least 25 per cent greater than it is at present. It is well to remember that 50,000 tons of supplies must be shipped every day to the Allies and to our 1,500,000 men in France. The ships which must take these supplies cannot now be accommodated at the port of New York. Terminals along the Hudson river are thus imperative."

"If the Brush-Walton bill becomes a law, a long step will have been taken toward solving the war transportation problem." Captain John E. Jenkins of Yonkers, representing a special committee of the Westchester board of supervisors, said that that county was the third largest in the state and that it would pay into the state treasury about $600,000 in taxes this year. That such a county was entitled to consideration was apparent, he pointed out. He added that the board of supervisors favored the Brush-Walton bill to a man.

Mayor Wallin of Yonkers said that since the state had expended $150,000,000 on the barge canal project, that in order to complete the benefit of such expenditure that it should be now made to co-operate with the railroads.

"Since the government now controls the railroads," said Mayor Wallin, "now is the time to establish that co-operation and prevent ruinous rates to be later established by either. The city of Yonkers desires that the state construct a barge canal terminal there. We expect the formation of a waterfront development commission soon. It would result in a substantial saving if products raised in the vicinity of Yonkers could be shipped by the barge canal to the great lakes."

Senator Slater was the last speaker. He declared that he had passed recently appropriating $10,000,000 with which to celebrate the completion of the barge canal was a joke. "Why the barge canal will never be completed," he cried, "until the Hudson river cities have been furnished with adequate terminals. There are nearly 1,000,000 residents in the Hudson valley and in that valley almost everything is produced. It is the greatest fruit territory in the state. When a food crisis comes it will be imperative that the produce raised there be shipped to the cities; the barge canal will furnish this medium. Retrenchment does not mean the elimination of appropriations of both state and national importance such as is this case."

The following were present at the hearing from Newburgh: Mayor Wilson, Corporation Counsel Corwin, Counsellor Sloan, Gurney, Perkins, Spencer, F. W. Wilson, chairman of the Barge Canal Terminal Commission of the Hudson Valley Federation of Chambers of Commerce; F. A. Young, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce; H. B. Odell, president of the Chamber of Commerce.

Yonkers sent this delegation: Mayor Wallin, Captain John F. Jenkins, Aldermen John S. Davis, William J. Gurley, Fred H. Stillwell, C. Percy Baker, City Clerk Howarth, William C. Smith, commissioner of charities; Supervisors Benjamin Fitzgibbons, Alfred Merz, Edward Stedley and Robert Smith; Dr. N. A. Warren, Alexander Stolz, James Ludlow, George S. Eddie, William L. Saunders, William Higgins, John P. Radcliff, Lawrence Griffith; Assessors Fred D. Breiback and Peter F. Smyth.

Among those from this city who attended the hearing were Joseph M. Herbert, president of Chamber of Commerce; Thomas A. Horton, vice president of Chamber of Commerce; Vincent A. Gorman, vice president of Chamber of Commerce; Rose Gorman-Rose, Inc.; Charles R. O'Connor, treasurer of Chamber of Commerce; Ed. M. Heermans, executive secretary of Chamber of Commerce; Mayor Palmer Canfield, Jr.; Alderman-at-Large Samuel W. C. Rodman, assistant general manager Kingston Gas and Electric Company; John E. Mahar, superintendent Prudential Insurance Company; William F. Rafferty, Louis M. Beeres, R. E. Leighton, Charles A. Hungerford, Arthur J. Burns, City Treasurer James E. Canfield, M. Clyde Crosby, Herbert Carr, Gilbert F. Kennedy, Edward T. McGuff, P. J. R. Clark, Judge John Van Etten, Delancy N. Mathews, William O'Reilly, Abraham V. DeGraff, Postmaster William C. DeWitt, Harry H. Flemming, G. W. Van Slyke, Fred Sahloff, Howard Chipp, Alfred D. Van Buren, Francis L. Thornberry, Judge William H. Grogan, D. G. Atkins, W. Scott Gillespie, Thomas J. Comerford, William M. Davis, Charles Tappan, A. D. Rose.

Hearing Stalelights: The Kingston delegation made the hit of the party, the thirty odd members each wearing a big yellow badge with "Kingston" printed across its face and each boasting for the terminal proposition at every opportunity. The hearing was pronounced one of the most representative of the session.

Senator Walton, immaculate and intensely interested that every member of the Finance Committee should perceive the importance of the bill, was the busiest man on the floor. His work in backing the terminals proposition has elicited favorable comment from Chambers of Commerce and the press of the Hudson Valley generally.

Assemblyman Brush of Orange county, co-author of the bill, was also on the job and looking after his constituents' interests at every stage. He is most hopeful for the Terminals bill this session of the Senate Committee on Finance can only see fit to report the same favorably.

State Engineer Frank M. Williams who has done much to bring about barge canal terminal work on the Hudson, was represented at the hearing. The state engineer is a native of Orange county and well informed on the Hudson Valley's needs in the way of terminal facilities. His aid has already been a powerful factor in support of this measure.

When one of the speakers mentioned army motor truck transportation, Senator Sage interrupted to say: "I have just been informed that these motor truck trains already threaten damage to the extent of $2,000,000 to New York state highways."

Publisher Fred Wilson of the Newburgh News, was an active figure at the hearing. With his newspaper and through his personal influence, he has been lining up support for the terminal measure among up-state legislators as well as among members from the Hudson Valley district.

Senator Sage, dignified and severe as becomes a legislator in charge of the state's purse-strings, appeared most favorably impressed with the arguments. Last year Senator Sage was sympathetic but not optimistic. At the hearing an optimistic trend was noted in his questioning. As a champion of the bill, a bridge at Castleton, the senator has helped materially toward securing due consideration for the Hudson Valley as a real "seaport section."

DAMAGE CASE ON IN SUPREME COURT

Michael De Cicco Sues the Beardslee's—Plaintiff Was Riding in Sisco's Car and Claims that Defendant's Car Collide With It.

Case No. 95 was begun in supreme court here this morning. This is an action for $500.00 damage brought by Michael De Cicco, Justice of the Peace, of East Kingston against E. C.

Beardslee and Mattie M. Beardslee, of Delaware county.

The facts, as alleged in the complaint, are substantially as follows:

On July 15, 1917, at 2:45 p. m., the plaintiff was riding on the Kingston-Saugerties state road, in an automobile as the guest of John Sisco.

The defendants were riding in an automobile owned by them and driven by Earl M. Beardslee.

The plaintiff claims that the defendants in a negligent and careless manner attempted to pass a car in which plaintiff was riding, collided with and upset it, throwing plaintiff and the other occupants out.

Plaintiff claims injuries to his arm, left shoulder and back.

Andrew J. Cook is appearing for the plaintiff; Judge William D. Brinnier, Jr., for the defendant.

Mr. Cook in his opening address to the jury, stated that the accident was due entirely to the negligence of Beardslee.

According to Mr. Cook, De Cicco was riding in the car with John Sisco, Mrs. Sisco and four children.

At the point where the incident occurred, near the house of Granville Paen, a wagon drawn by one horse was coming towards Kingston.

Beardslee attempted to pass in the space between the wagon and Sisco's car, and collided with it.

Beardslee's car was going at the rate of twenty to thirty miles an hour.

Defence in the Case.

Mr. Brinnier in his opening address to the jury, stated that Beardslee passed Sisco's car without colliding with same, and that there was no mark on Sisco's car to substantiate the claim of the collision.

After Beardslee passed Sisco's car he heard some one holler and going back he found Sisco's car ditched.

Plaintiff is Called.

Justice DeCicco, the plaintiff, was the first witness called. He gave his version of the incident.

He was subjected to a severe cross-examination by Judge Brinnier.

Mr. Hornbeck Testifies.

Marvin Hornbeck of Saugerties testified that he was driving a wagon on this road and day in question, and that Beardslee, while attempting to pass between the wagon and the Sisco car, collided with the car and ditched it.

Ernest Decker of Saugerties testified that he was riding in the wagon with Hornbeck. Decker's testimony was along the same lines as Hornbeck's.

A number of other witnesses were called.

The case may be finished today.

Other Cases Disposed Of.

In Cases 90, 91 and 92, an order was entered dismissing the complaints.

Case 110 was announced as settled.

In Case 67, the complaint was dismissed.

An Inquest was taken in Case 75, Con. Ros. Cement Company, against Builders' Brick and Supply Company, and a verdict of $261.74 awarded to the plaintiff.

A Good Record.

To date 23 cases have been disposed of at the March term. They were cases 12, 24, 27, 28, 4, 10, 12, 24, 27, 22, 14, 19, 42, 55, 63, 67, 71, 75, 76, 90, 91, 92, 95, 102, 112, 135, 136, 110, 48, 88, 119, 128, 130.

JUSTICE RUDD GRANTS NON-SUIT

In Action Brought by Richard Spellman Against Former Sheriff Shultis—First Case of This Kind in Years.

This action brought by Richard S. Spellman, of Saugerties, against Edgar T. Shultis, former sheriff of Ulster county, ended Wednesday afternoon in the supreme court by Justice Rudd granting the motion made by John W. Eckert, attorney for Shultis, for a non-suit.

This action is the first action brought against a sheriff of this county in a number of years, and Mr. Eckert in his opening address to the jury, characterized it as "an act to get $250 out of Mr. Shultis."

Spellman, the plaintiff, on November 30, 1917, started an action in the county court to recover certain property from Elizabeth L. Spellman (who was awarded a separation from Spellman.) Spellman claimed that this property belonged to him. Elizabeth L. Spellman also claimed the property. This action was not tried.

Spellman took out a writ of replevin under which Sheriff Shultis seized the property. Elizabeth L. Spellman then filed a satisfactory bond, and the sheriff returned the property to her.

Spellman alleged that the sheriff had no right to return this property to Elizabeth L. Spellman, without the consent of him (Spellman) or his attorney.

The defense was that the sheriff had acted within his rights and that the suit was just a "strike" to get money from the former sheriff.

Mr. Eckert, in making the motion for the non-suit, stated that Mr. Spellman had not proven his ownership of the goods, and that the county court had accepted bonds to cover the action of the sheriff in returning the goods after they had been replevined.

Mr. Eckert and G. F. Kaufman appeared for Shultis; N. H. Fessenden and Frank W. Brooks for Spellman.

Brother, dear brother,
How we miss you,
Since your face
No more we see.
As each year passes on
We miss you more and more
And no one your place can fill.
How we miss your kind greetings
And loving words of cheer,
No tongue can tell.
But we must bow in submission
To God's great best.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, March 28.—There was a vigorous demand at the opening of the stock market today with a great deal of outside buying being induced by the better character of the war news overnight, but the advances were not maintained and before the end of the first 15 minutes, reactions were in order. Steel Common made an initial gain of $\frac{1}{4}$ to 90 $\frac{1}{2}$ and sold off to 89 $\frac{1}{2}$, and other steel industrials moved in the same way.

American Car Foundry advanced $\frac{1}{4}$ to 78 $\frac{1}{2}$ and then reacted to 78 $\frac{1}{2}$. Reading opened up $\frac{1}{4}$ to 82 but reacted to 81 $\frac{1}{2}$. New Haven responded to the news by the government to finance the notes maturing April 15th, showing a gain of 2 points with sales at 10 $\frac{1}{2}$, but reacted to 29 $\frac{1}{2}$ in the next few minutes.

Studebaker continued under pronounced pressure, and after opening $\frac{1}{4}$ higher at 40 $\frac{1}{2}$, dropped to 39, the lowest price touched on this movement.

The reaction which started shortly after the opening continued for the best part of the first hour when losses of around one point were sustained in many issues. Later in the forenoon, however, the market turned strong with recoveries which carried prices of some stocks above the opening level.

The volume of business was small. Steel Common after dropping to 89 $\frac{1}{2}$, rallied to about 90 and American Car and Foundry after selling down over one point to 77 $\frac{1}{2}$, moved up to 79 $\frac{1}{2}$. Distillers was brisk demand, moving up over one point to 41 $\frac{1}{2}$. Studebaker fell down to 39.

Trading during the afternoon was of a pre-holiday character with price movements generally consisting of fractional declines which were followed by a moderate rally in instances. A few specialties were pressed for sale including Tobacco Products and Mexican Petroleum. U. S. Steel Common fluctuated within a narrow range showing only a slight net change from yesterday's first closing.

The market closed heavy today; government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds steady.

Send Cigars to Men in Service From A. B. C. D. E.

A very clever scheme has been devised by the chairman of the Cigar Booth at the Annual Benedictine Charity Dance, Easter Monday evening, whereby patrons of the dance may purchase and send cigars to boys in army or navy at home or overseas. There will be in connection with this cigar and flower booth, of which Mrs. Palmer Canfield, Jr., is chairman, and Miss Helena Clearwater, vice-chairman, a post office, with Mayor Palmer Canfield, Jr., as post master, and Dr. Harry Van Wagenen and Peter Barmann, Jr., as chief postal clerks. Cigars done up in special "war" boxes will be for sale and the post office will take the addresses of men in service as given them and will mail the cigars at once to such men. So all persons who wish to send this most acceptable souvenir of this year's Benedictine dance to men in camps or cantonments or overseas, should go to the dance prepared to give correct addresses for the mailing of these boxes of cigars. Orders in advance will also be received.

Other helpers at the cigar and flower booth will be Miss Tilly Bongartz, Miss Elizabeth Kearney, Miss Elizabeth Palen, Miss Stella McNelis, Miss Angela Dwyer, Miss Ida Weber, Miss Ethel Van Keuren, Miss Margaret Reardon, Miss Kathryn Reardon, Miss Frances Flannigan, Miss Marie Clark, Mrs. H. P. Van Wagenen, Mrs. E. Palen, Mrs. Peter Barmann, Jr.

The lady and ladies who will sell flowers will be Holmes Canfield, Helen Dwyer, Dorothy Dinan, Helen McNelis, Rosalind Canfield, Catherine Kearney, Doris Barmann, Betty Murphy, Sancha Barmann, Ruth Palen, Catherine Deane.

CHURCHES RUINED IN FURY BY HUNS

War Correspondent Describes Trail of Desolation Left by the Germans.

VILLAGE RUTHLESSLY BURNED

Sermaze Destroyed, Though Not a Shell Was Fired on It.

By FRED B. PITNEY.

(As special correspondent for the New York Tribune at the seat of war, Mr. Pitney has had exceptional opportunity to investigate conditions in the area of France which was invaded by the Germans at the beginning of the war and has now been evacuated.)

Sermaze, in the valley of the Marne, was a village of 900 houses, the center of a peaceful agricultural community. The Germans entered it without opposition and stayed a week, withdrawing as part of the general movement of the German army at the time of the battle of the Marne. Those German soldiers who were in Sermaze had had a week's rest in the tranquil homes of the French peasants and bourgeoisie of the village. They had had no fighting.

They paid for their week's rest by burning the village on the morning that they left it. Eight hundred and sixty of the 900 houses of Sermaze were utterly destroyed. And not a shell fell on the town from either side. Nor a shot was fired in the streets. Yet it looks today like the ruins of a village devastated in the Napoleonic wars.

Here, near Verdun, I found the answer that had escaped me before. It was the women and children working in the fields. The absence of men. What I saw between Paris and the front led me later to travel over several hundred miles of western France to see if I would find the same conditions there. Everywhere I found the same thing. The able-bodied men, young, middle aged, and many of them white haired, were in uniform, while the women and children, the crippled and infirm were doing the men's work at home.

The scar that lies across the battlefield of the Marne penetrates into every corner of France. There is not a village that has not given up its strongest and best for the life of the nation, not a farm that has not paid its toll. On the plains of the Touraine and the Vande, in the fields of Brittany and the fertile valley of the Loire it is the women and children who reap the harvest and plough the land, while the men are at the front, wearing the horizon blue.

Will it be possible to say the same thing of America in later years? Unless it is, America cannot win this war. Unless the women and children and the men who remain at home are willing to give themselves for their country as do the men who go to the battle-front, there can be no victory for America.

We must work and we must save. We must give of our toil and of our money. We must be prepared, when the country calls, to come forward with the money needed to bring victory. We must be ready to subscribe to each Liberty Loan as it is put forth.

Only One House Spared.
The houses of the town had been built of stone and their roofs had been of stone or slate. It had been one of the quiet little grey stone villages, such as are all the villages and farms of France. Before the war it was a happy and prosperous. Now it was a scattered pile of yellowing ruins from the Middle Ages. The house with the roof, the only house not struck by the shells, was the only one that preserved its grey white tone.

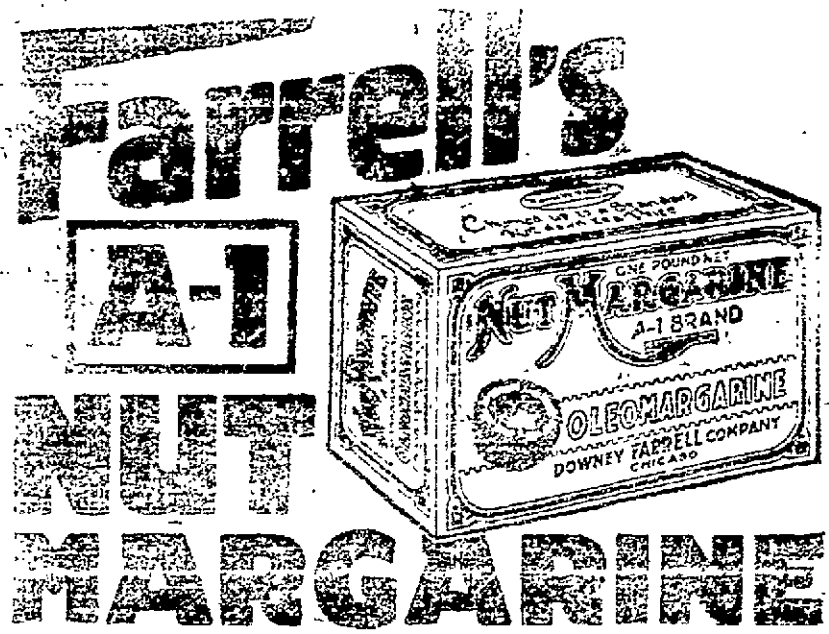

The streets were strewn with blocks of stone. The roof trees lay in the cellars. Half fallen walls were a constant menace. Windows lacked their frames and doorways their doors. The tower of the church sprawled across the street, while the bell hung precariously through a hole made in the roof of the building when the shot that carried away the tower passed through.

A few miles further on toward Verdun is Beaune, where the church had been the principal target of the German gunners. Its tower still stood, but we climbed into the church over what had been one of the side walls and picked our way among the roof beams. A shell had struck the main altar, while the benches for the worshippers were crushed beneath the fallen pillars. On a bit of the wall yet standing was a painting of the Feast of the Passover, and in front of it a candelabrum hung and swung like a pendulum in the gentle breeze, while two candles flickered before an altar that had been nicked by shrapnel.

Such are a few isolated examples of what Germany does in war. This is the people against whom America is fighting. It behooves those who remain at home, those who do not go to the front with arms in their hands, to see to it that the armies at the front are equipped for victory. The armies cannot win without the concurrence of the people at home.

The Scars of Battle.
A few miles from Verdun, just off the battle line, in fact, for the big guns could be plainly heard, I saw two women and a boy hard at work filling in a trench that ran diagonally across a field and interfered with the autumn plowing. That incident furnished the answer to a question I had been asking myself ever since we left Paris.

My question was, "Where are the scars of battle along the Marne?" Here, near Verdun, I found the answer that had escaped me before. It was the women and children working in the fields. The absence of men. What I saw between Paris and the front led me later to travel over several hundred miles of western France to see if I would find the same conditions there.

HIGHLAND.

Highland, March 27.—Edgar Bond of Camp Upton spent the week-end here with his people.

Mr. and Mrs. Harcourt Pratt have entertained their niece, Miss H. R. Harshbrouck, who is a college girl for the Easter vacation.

Miss Ruth Harcourt of New York was a week end guest of her people.

Mrs. Julia Worden entertained Miss Elvora Lane of Lloyd, last week.

Mrs. John Harcourt had her daughter, Miss Laura, from Mt. Vernon for a guest recently.

Mrs. Chester Atkins and daughter, Ethel, arrived home Tuesday evening from a visit of nearly two weeks in New York city with relatives. They report a very delightful time.

William Whitmore, one of our New Palis trolley motormen, was badly hurt last week by being struck on the head by a trolley car while driving an automobile. He is getting along as well as can be expected, but pretty well bruised and shaken up; also a dislocated shoulder. He was fortunate to escape with his life. There is too much reckless and careless driving by people who run automobiles.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Mellins last Saturday a company of friends assembled to have a social evening and at the same time witness a war time wedding. One of our high school teachers decided to become a war bride. Miss Wynn became the partner of Lieutenant Hovey, Rev. J. C. Coddington, pastor of the M. E. Church, in this place, performed the ceremony, after which a luncheon was served. Miss Ethel Wilkison played the wedding march. We were informed that the bride will continue her duties as domestic teacher until the expiration of the term at least. We extend congratulations to Lieut. Hovey and bride and wish for them a happy and prosperous future.

Miss Marguerite Coddington, who is in college at Hackettstown, N. J., will spend her Easter vacation here with her parents, Rev. and Mrs. J. C. Coddington.

Miss Bessie Dickinson, who is a teacher in Katona, will spend her Easter vacation in this place with her mother and sisters.

Miss Laura Palmer of Brownsville is spending her Easter vacation at her home on Grand street with her parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Joel Smedes had guests this week from New Palis.

Rev. W. E. Chubb of Poughkeepsie district, Rev. E. A. Bookhout, of Port Jervis, Principal E. A. Marsh, Highland; Rev. F. H. Deming, of Newburgh and Rev. J. C. Coddington, of Highland, were the able men who gave addresses through Passion Week in the M. E. Church of this place.

Edward Dwyer's family, of New York city, will spend the Easter vacation in this place. It will soon be time for the family to come on here for the summer. They have a cottage just off Maple avenue and they greatly enjoy the country for the summer months.

The housewives of the place are now thinking about house cleaning. Just as soon as the weather man gives us more clear days and some of the grand sunshine then watch out and see the women work.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Constable, H. Rose and Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Kurtz attended the burial service of a relative of Paterson, N. J., last Friday at Newburgh. They went by auto and met the funeral cortege at the train and returned in the evening.

Captain and Mrs. R. H. Decker had guests from Poughkeepsie last week.

All of this week at the Wilcox store could be Easter shopping. We all unite in the salute to "Easter-ette," and also hail with pleasure the Wilcox store opening. They are displaying some very nice dress goods, porch dresses, fancy waltzes, sport shoes, fancy neckwear, fine hosiery and many other articles too numerous to mention, so we say do your Easter shopping at home where your dollar counts one hundred cents to the dollar every time. They give you good quality, style and prices to suit your purse. In these war times everybody in our place wants to look well on Easter and after winter clothes, we want and must have spring attire, these people invite all to come to their store; you will be welcome whether you purchase or merely come in and look. Opportunity is knocking at your door, do not let it slip from you but make your Easter joy complete by having something new. Take the hint, step in Wilcox's and see their display.

Mr. and Mrs. Orson Sheeley have been confined to the house for some time with very severe colds. They are at present improving and hope soon to be around at work as usual.

Mrs. Annette of Brookline, Mass., has been in the place for several days.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Kurtz had several guests the past week from New York and New Jersey.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Constable entertained relatives from the city for a few days the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. George Eyer were in Kingston this week on business.

Mr. and Mrs. John R. Moulle of Milton avenue spent a short time in Newburgh the past week.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Presbyterian church here held their regular business meeting last week, Wednesday afternoon, and we were informed by one of their members, they elected as their president for the year, 1918, Mrs. W. T. Riverburgh, with a cabinet of vice-presidents, to take up the work for the future and all these organizations mean work.

Mr. and Mrs. Jake Schuele of Vineyard avenue, entertained several friends from Marlborough, one evening last week. Mrs. Schuele was formerly a Marlborough girl and her friends very often come up here and spend some time with the people and always return home with the satisfaction of being entertained to the queen's taste.

Mrs. Jack Lines was a shopper in Poughkeepsie on Wednesday last.

Last Sunday at the M. E. Church, Palm Sunday was observed. The Junior choir sang from choir loft

VERDICT FOR NO CAUSE OF ACTION

Mrs. Supplies Loses Her Case Against the City—Claimed That the Washington Avenue Grade Was Raised, Causing Water to Run Into Her Cellars.

The jury in the supreme court in the action brought by Mrs. Carrie Supplies against the City of Kingston brought in a verdict Wednesday afternoon, after being out for twenty-five minutes, for no cause of action.

Mrs. Supplies owns dwellings at 428-428 Washington avenue and claims that because the city raised the grade on Washington avenue when a section of this street was paved, water ran into the cellars of these buildings at various times, causing considerable damage to the foundations and cellars.

The defense was that the grade was not raised and that the condition complained of was caused by the clay and quicksand in the soil which caused the sidewalk to sink in at several points; and other causes for which the city was not responsible.

J. M. Fowler appeared for Mrs. Supplies; Corporation Counsel William D. Brinnier, Sr., for the city.

SEWING MACHINES ARE BADLY NEEDED

So greatly has the work of making Red Cross hospital garments increased at headquarters on Broadway that it is now necessary to ask for more sewing machines. This Miss Millard, chairman of the hospital garments committee, has asked The Freeman to do. Two or three good sewing machines, that is lock stitch machines that are in good running order, are needed at the headquarters and two are needed at the English Lutheran Church. The need of emphasizing the fact that the machines must be in good working condition is apparent when one considers that when busy housekeepers give up one or more afternoons to do this work, it is asking altogether too much of them to require in addition that they spend any part of that time fussing with machines that are either out of order or that are too old to be put in good order. One might naturally hesitate to ask for many things as a gift or loan under ordinary circumstances, but when it comes to asking for any necessary equipment for the making more effective our Red Cross work, not to ask would be decidedly false modesty. So the Red Cross hopes that there are four or five people in this city who will either give or loan good, lock stitch sewing machines for Red Cross work during this war period. Any persons having such a machine to give or loan are asked to at once communicate with the Red Cross Headquarters, telephone 1880, as soon as possible.

PLANS TO HALT GREAT WHITE PLAGUE

County Committee Considers Dispensary and Other Preventive and Curative Measures in the War on Tuberculosis.

Yes, and several other things, to make more effective its work of preventing and curing tuberculosis in Ulster county, as appeared at a meeting of the executive council of the tuberculosis committee held Wednesday afternoon in the office of the president, the Hon. Joseph M. Fowler. The meeting was a special meeting to consider this question of a dispensary and to hear reports concerning the securing of a temporary visiting nurse, the purchase of an automobile for the furtherance of tuberculosis work in the county, etc.

Dr. Prest, who is connected with the State Board of Health, but who is now on a leave of absence from that board and serving under the State Charities Aid in the interest of establishing dispensaries, was present and addressed the meeting.

Dr. Prest said that there were twenty-eight cities in the state, some smaller than Kingston, where such dispensaries are now in operation, with good results, too. These dispensaries, which are located in the center of the cities, are not only accessible headquarters for the work, but are also wonderful object lessons all the time, to the entire community.

The visiting nurse works from the dispensary, to bring cases to the dispensary, through the dispensary, to the tuberculosis hospital.

As the visiting nurse discovers some advanced case, for instance, the other members of the family who doubtless may be incipient cases can be examined and watched through the dispensary. The gratuitous examination and diagnosis may mean one of the biggest possible factors in any community in checking the onward march of this disease. It has been repeatedly found that where the nurse finds one case which comes to the dispensary, that patient is very likely to bring other patients, often whole groups of incipient cases are thus discovered at the proper time for making a cure possible.

The cost, outside the nurse herself, which in any community is small. All shown by Dr. Prest to be small. All that is needed is two fair-sized rooms, properly located, one room to be used for a waiting room and the nurse's office and the other for an examining room. The only part of the equipment which need cost more than a nominal sum would be the scales. Where dispensaries are already doing good work, there are held, usually, three clinics a week: one afternoon, one evening and a Saturday morning hour, to accommodate the employed and unemployed and school children, often discovered by the school nurse to have tuberculosis tendencies. The world war has emphasized as never before the need of conserving human life, and this work comes emphatically under that head.

While the plan has been tried out of having physicians give their services, it has been found that the best way is to pay the physician a small, regular fee, demanding in return, that the doctor in charge be at the dispensary at the stated hours or provide a satisfactory substitute.

The entire committee, after hearing of Dr. Prest, seemed in favor of establishing such a dispensary in Kingston, and in order that necessary information might be forthcoming to enable the committee to work to the best advantage, a committee composed of Dr. Gates, Dr. Dederer, Dr. O'Meara and Mr. Fowler ex officio was appointed to do the necessary investigating and report back to the executive council.

The committee having in charge the securing of a nurse to take Miss O'Shea's place during her leave of absence, then reported having secured Miss Brown, who for the past four years has been assistant nurse at the Tuberculosis Hospital. With the assumption of this work, Miss Brown's place at the hospital would have to be filled, and inasmuch as it had been planned to secure a night nurse for the hospital, it was decided to secure two certified, trained nurses to take the place of Miss Brown, (registered nurse), one of these nurses to act as night nurse. The details of the arrangements were left with the committee.

The next matter to be brought up, and one of much importance as regards the efficiency of the tuberculosis work, especially in the county, was that of the purchase of an automobile for the use of the visiting nurse and other such purposes in connection with the hospital service as the committee should deem desirable. It was pointed out that since the county yearly contributes a generous amount through Christmas Seals Sales, toward the work, it should have its share of the service of the nurse, which is almost an utter impossibility if train service and horse hire are to be depended upon. The members of the executive council present, were unanimous in their opinion that the purchase of a suitable automobile was necessary and a committee composed of Sam Bernstein, Cornelius Hume and the Rev. J. H. Brady was appointed to investigate both the cost of small autos and their running expenses to report back to the council at its next meeting.

It was called to the attention of the meeting that a law had recently been passed making it obligatory for the counties of New York state to have and maintain a tuberculosis hospital. Still more recently the supervisors of Ulster county have petitioned for an amendment to the law making it optional, not obligatory for the counties to have and maintain such a hospital. A resolution was passed by the meeting on Wednesday, to the effect that it was the sense of the executive council of the Ulster County Committee on the Prevention of Tuberculosis that the law, as it now stands, should remain in force and that any amendment changing it to make tuberculosis hospitals in the counties optional would be inopportune and ill advised especially in view of the war situation regarding the return of soldiers ill with tuberculosis, and such resolution will be forwarded to our senator. The meeting then adjourned.

SAVORY SAUCES.
A well seasoned sauce adds much to an otherwise very ordinary dish.

Oyster Cocktail Sauce.—Take three tablespoonfuls of tomato catsup, one tablespoonful of horseradish sauce, a teaspoonful of Worcestershire well mixed and served in lemon cups in a dish of crushed ice with oysters.

Snappy French Dressing.—Take two tablespoonfuls of olive oil, a tablespoonful of tarragon vinegar, a dash of paprika, a quarter of a teaspoonful each of mustard and salt; mix well and serve in the heart leaves of lettuce; sprinkle over a teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce and a tablespoonful of finely chopped onion and a generous sprinkling of red pepper.

Roquefort Cheese Dressing.—Take a quarter of a pound of roquefort, two cupfuls of French dressing, using one and a half cupfuls of oil and a half cupful of vinegar, seasoning well with salt and red pepper, with a teaspoonful of powdered sugar.

Russian Dressing.—Beat two eggs, add red pepper and half a teaspoonful of salt, a teaspoonful of finely minced parsley, two teaspoonfuls each of chopped green and red pepper, a half cupful of tarragon vinegar. Mix well and add two cupfuls each of chili sauce and mayonnaise.

Mignonette Sauce.—Chop three small onions, add seven tablespoonfuls of crushed whole peppers (not ground pepper), add three cupfuls of tarragon vinegar, put into a jar well covered and let stand for two days, when it will be ready to use. The sauce may be strained when ready to serve. Very tasty sauce for oysters.

Emergency Salad Dressing.—Use any left-over yolks or whites—both are better, and the more of the yolk the richer will be the dressing. Beat and measure and take an equal measure of mild vinegar—strong vinegar may be diluted with water; put over hot water to cook, stirring constantly with an eggbeater. When thick, set away in a covered jar. When wanted for use, take out a few tablespoonfuls, season with salt, pepper, onion juice, vinegar, cream, or olive oil, depending upon the kind of salad one is serving.

Looks for World Famine.
Mr. Egan, United States minister to Denmark, says if the war lasts two years longer the whole world will be on the verge of starvation. That is possible. With 10,000,000 men in arms, consuming and not producing, the time is coming and is not far off when there will be no food left. A foodless world will be a strange experience. There have been famines, but for the people to have nothing to eat anywhere is a situation that has never been anticipated heretofore. There is some gratification in thinking that the Hun will be getting hungrier than we are and will be turning to us to borrow a little flour and bacon, which we will be sure to lend him on condition that he promises to behave himself and let up on his Kultur.—Ohio State Journal.

SUGAR: PRODUCE MORE AND SUBSTITUTE. ADVISE SPECIALISTS.

Satisfactory substitutes for sugar may be used to a much larger extent, says a paragraph in the department of agriculture's agricultural production program for 1918, which will be of interest to the housewife. While urging maintenance of the acreage of sugar cane and sugar beets and increases where these crops are well established or are necessary to sound agricultural practice, the program states that an extensive increase in 1918 is not possible because of the time required to grow seed cane stock and because of the limited amount of beet seed available.

The larger use of sorghum, corn and cane syrup, maple sugar and sirup, and honey is urged. The maple sirup and sugar production can and should be increased in those areas in which maple trees are growing in sufficient numbers to warrant the expenditure of the necessary time and labor. Maple sirup and sugar are produced in 19 states, the annual output exceeding 14,000,000 pounds of sugar and 4,000,000 gallons of sirup. These figures can be increased. The production of sorghum sirup in 1917 exceeded that in 1916 by nearly 4,000,000 gallons. Sorghum sirup may be produced in nearly every state in the Union, and an increased production of sorghum sirup will enable the public still further to conserve the sugar supply in the most available form for transportation to our soldiers.

BREAD BOX HELP TO HOUSEKEEPER

Device Is Easily Constructed and Removes Uncertainty of Baking.

ASBESTOS BEST FOR LINING

Thermometer Enclosed Baker to Obtain Desired Temperature—Specialists Advise Production of More Sugar Crops.

War kitchens must be efficient. Compromises will help make them so.

A home-made sponge box or bread raiser will help make the bread better. It enables the housekeeper to keep her sponge or dough at the right temperature so that it will rise in less time. A sponge box or bread-raiser, therefore, takes much of the uncertainty out of bread-baking. It can be made from an ordinary dry goods packing box.

Placing the Shelves.

A box 26 by 20 by 20 inches is a convenient size. About 10 inches from the bottom of the box a shelf made of slats or strips of wood rests on cleats fastened to the sides of the box. A second shelf is placed four inches above the lower one. The shelves can be removed when cleaning the box. Below the lower shelf a sheet of galvanized iron slightly wider than the shelf is inserted. It is curved in order to make it slip in and stay in place securely. This prevents scorching of the lower shelf when a lamp is placed below, and also helps to distribute the heat more evenly. The door is hinged and fastened with a thumb-latch or hook and staple.

Several small holes are bored in the lower and upper parts of the sides and in the top of the box to promote circulation of air. A cork which has been bored through the center to admit a straight thermometer is inserted in one of the holes in the top of the box. A Fahrenheit chemical thermometer that registers as high as 100 degrees can be used. Such a thermometer may be ordered through a hardware dealer or directly from an instrument dealer.

Make Safe From Fire.

To avoid all danger of fire, the box should be lined with asbestos or tin when a kerosene lamp is used for heating the box. If an electric light is used, the lining is not necessary. A 16-candlepower light will heat the box nicely. A small and inexpensive night lamp is placed in the bottom of the box and a shallow pan of water is placed on the lower shelf so that the air in the box will be kept moist.

The bowl of sponge or pans of dough are placed on the upper shelf. The temperature of the box should be kept as near 85 degrees Fahrenheit as possible (80 to 88 degrees Fahrenheit) when bread is being made in the quick way. If a sponge is set overnight 65 to 70 degrees Fahrenheit is the better temperature until the dough is made in the morning, after which the temperature may be increased to 85 degrees Fahrenheit. The temperature in the box may be varied by raising or lowering the flame of the lamp or by using warm or cold water in the shallow pan.

Filter Peanut Oil at Home. Unrefined peanut oil can be prepared for household use by filtering through ordinary filter paper obtainable at drug stores. A Georgia woman, the wife of an oil miller, had been paying her grocer nearly $2 a gallon for cooking oil while her husband sold his unrefined oil to a refinery for about $1.20 a gallon. She sent a small sample of the oil from her husband's mill to the bureau of chemistry of the United States department of agriculture with the request that, if possible, she be told of a method by which it could be made suitable for household use. The filter paper method was suggested. In a letter which came to the department later the success of the method was described as "surpassing my best expectations."

Sour Cream Salad Dressing. Potatoes can be used to advantage in many ways in the school lunch. Potato salad is one way. The attractiveness of the salad depends largely on the dressing used. A good dressing can be made as follows:

1/2 teaspoonful mustard, 1/2 teaspoonful sugar, 1 egg, 1/2 teaspoonful salt, 1/2 cupful vinegar, 1/2 teaspoonful paprika, 1 cupful sour cream, 1/2 cupful milk.

Beat the egg until very light, add the other ingredients, and cook in a double boiler, stirring constantly until thickened. Remove from the fire and heat well. If this dressing is cooked properly, it will have, when cool, a thick, smooth consistency. If it is overcooked, so that there is a tendency to separate, it should be strained before cooling.

Oatmeal Cookies for Lunches. Oatmeal cookies, a wholesome and wholesome sweet for the school lunch, may be made of one egg, one-third cupful granulated sugar, one cupful rolled oats, two teaspoonfuls melted fat, one-fourth teaspoonful salt. Beat the egg, add sugar gradually, and stir in other ingredients. Drop a spoonful at a time on a well-greased tin and bake in a moderate oven.

Milk Is Good as Meat. If milk is 10 cents a quart it is as cheap a protein food as sirloin steak at 22.9 cents a pound or eggs at 27.9 cents a dozen. At 12 cents a quart it is as cheap as sirloin steak selling at 27.4 cents a pound or eggs at 33.5 cents a dozen. To supply energy at equal cost when milk is 10 cents a quart, sirloin steak must not be more than 14.2 cents a pound, and eggs not more than 15.5 cents a dozen.

Classifying the Jury. Counsel (addressing jury): The principal fault of the witness has been his unfortunate characteristic of putting faith in theories and soundbells of the latest description. I have done the utmost in my power to put implicit faith in your gentlemen of the jury.

Differing Views on Marriage. When a marriage is announced, the bride's woman friend says: "I wonder why they waited so long. She was getting old and crabbed." And the groom's man friend says: "What did the blamed fool marry so early for? He'll lose the best years of his life."—Kansas City Star.

HUDSON VALLEY LEADERS WANT CANAL TERMINALS

Large Delegation in which Kingston was Well-Represented Presents a Strong Case in Favor of the Walton-Brush Bill.

Albany, March 28, (Special to The Freeman).—Ship construction at Kingston and Newburgh makes imperative the passage of the Barge Canal Terminal Act known as the Walton-Brush bill, which will virtually transform the two cities named together with Poughkeepsie and Yonkers also mentioned in the measure, into seaports and seaport cities. The bill is being introduced in support of that proposition was developed among members of the senate finance committee at a hearing yesterday afternoon at which representatives of the Hudson Valley presented forceful arguments in favor of immediate enactment.

Not a voice was raised in opposition to the measure and Senator Walton, its author, was more than pleased with the vigorous measure of support which came from his home city of Kingston and with the appearance of a delegation of more than 200 in outspoken insistence that the bill be passed as a war emergency proposition.

Mayor Palmer Canfield, Jr., headed the Kingston delegation and the other cities were represented by leading citizens. The hearing which was called because of the pressure of legislative business was held in the assembly ways and means committee room and to quote legislators from other sections of the state it was "some hearing" for the presentation of clear-cut facts without any surplus of oratory or other time-consuming manoeuvres.

Senator Sage presided and the different speakers were introduced by Senator Walton.

Nothing but the policy of the financial committee of the legislature which may be adhered to prevent an additional direct tax will prevent the favorable report of the bill. This statement was made, following the hearing held upon the joint measure, by Senator Henry M. Sage, chairman of the senate finance committee. That he was in full accord with the provisions of the proposed legislation and believed that the Hudson river should be canalized as an adjunct to the improved barge canal, so as to make it available along its entire course, was also stated by Senator Sage.

In his viewpoint, Assemblyman Nachod, chairman of the ways and means committee of the assembly, joined.

Few hearings have attracted to the capital such a galaxy of representative and influential men as came to Albany yesterday. All of the cities which are to be affected by the proposed terminals sent large delegations, including men prominent in both official and industrial life. Private manufacturing enterprises as well as the Chamber of Commerce in each of the four cities were represented and the verbal tocsin sounded was unanimous that barge canal terminals were essential for industry, the speedy termination of the war and for future expansion of transportation.

There appears to be doubt as to the fate of the bill this year, although it has not been definitely decided that it will die in committee. Lack of money in the coffers of the state and the improbability of the desired terminals being constructed within a year, because of the shortage of labor, the high price of building materials and the shipping facilities, were pointed out by Senator Sage as serious obstacles to the passage of the measure this session.

After he had heard the speakers, who had ardently advocated the passage of the Brush-Walton bill, Senator Sage explained that the measure had failed of passage last year because of the war.

"We believed then that it was the critical period of the world conflict," said Senator Sage, "this year the situation is just as critical. The necessity for retrenchment is such as to make the Brush-Walton bill a matter for the most serious consideration. We have a bill ready which appropriates $1,000,000 with which to purchase boats for canal traffic in the event that none will be available when the completed barge canal opens. We have no assurance that there will be any boats at that time otherwise."

"The finance committees of the legislature desire to avoid the direct tax system, moreover, it would take more than a year to build the desired terminals, for it is a difficult matter to get the necessary labor. These problems which must be solved and which the finance committees have not yet solved, I believe absolutely in your project. I am not yet certain, however, whether it is wise to take the step this year. I am convinced that the Hudson should be made part of the barge canal."

Attorney William E. Fitzsimmons of Albany, representing the Hudson Valley Federation of Chambers of Commerce, was the first speaker and he outlined the barge canal terminal system as it exists today with 46 terminals on the artificial waterway and several in New York city but not one in Albany or along the great waterway between Albany and New York.

Quoting the late James J. Hill as saying that the railroads would at no time be able to come within 20 per cent of taking care of the country's traffic and pointing to water transportation as the only alternative, the speaker declared that if New York state's great waterway system was to fulfill its function that the Hudson river terminals must be built. The questions as to the bill were two, he said, one the need for the terminals and the other the advisability of the expenditure of this time of war.

Mr. Fitzsimmons made a strong point of the unity of sentiment in the Hudson valley as shown by the fact that though the federal government represents many communities, the entire body and, in fact, all the cities of the Hudson valley had agreed upon the four cities named in the bill as the places for the first terminals. Newburgh, at present building a steel bridge, has a heavy tonnage of goods to be shipped to New York and its seven waterways. It has a large shipbuilding plant employing 400 men; growing industrial centers at Poughkeepsie, Peekskill and Wappingers Falls all entered into the forceful declaration given by the speaker of the local conditions while on the other hand he pointed to the national need for ships, transportation of supplies including food and munitions being a vital problem at this time only to be solved by water transportation.

"The $9,000,000 in this bill is merely a drop in the bucket," declared Mr. Fitzsimmons in closing, "and the entire Hudson valley pays 80 per cent of the taxes of New York asks your honorable body to pass this measure and thus aid the carrying on of the war, and the allies, relieve congestion and build up better transportation facilities in New York state."

Former Congressman Peter Ten Eyck, introduced by Senator Walton, as a champion of the deeper Hudson, made a powerful plea for favorable action by the committee in approving of the bill. He said that a small amount of money, if spent wisely, would be a tremendous benefit according to the Hudson valley and to the state and nation as a result. Mr. Ten Eyck was applauded heartily by the Kingston delegation as he has frequently aided that city in gaining support for the Rondout bridge project and has spoken there several times in the deeper Hudson proposition.

"Not another appropriation before your honorable body at this time," he declared in closing, "is as important to the successful prosecution of the war and to the welfare of the people and the industries of New York state as this project."

The growth of Yonkers as a manufacturing center was depicted by Alexander Stolze, representing the Chamber of Commerce of that city, who was followed with close attention as he outlined the plans of that city to expend $10,000 a year to make the water front a maritime terminal, if a special act now pending is approved by the legislature. He cited the development at that point and of the unity of action between the city and county officials. He predicted two or three years more of war and declared the terminals act a paramount necessity to aid the federal government as well as the state.

Superintendent of Schools S. R. George, of Poughkeepsie, quoted George Washington's message of more than 100 years ago pointing to the need for an internal waterway connecting the Virginia with the Great Lakes. The terminals would perfect the waterway system of the state he said, and in themselves are as important, and necessary to the canal as are freight depots to the railroads.

The coal famine could be relieved by these terminals, the speaker declared, and cited figures showing that the Dutton Lumber Company of Poughkeepsie now receives lumber there from the Pacific coast via the Panama canal at a transportation cost of $12 a thousand feet as against a freight charge for the same lumber of $24 by rail from Seattle to Chicago.

"The lumber company," he said, "can get its lumber from the Pacific coast and then ship to Chicago cheaper than the cost of the railroad freight charge across the continent."

Mayor Palmer Canfield, Jr., of Kingston, was warmly received, a point which he said showed the legislators in a more receptive mood on this proposition so important to all concerned. He told of the building of submarine chasers at Kingston, of the new shipbuilding plant there and of seven similar concerns building smaller craft. In addition, the chemical and munitions plant would benefit by the water transportation made available at their very doors. The mayor presented a formidable list of Kingston industries, which could make use of the barge canal if proper terminal facilities were afforded. The railroads themselves, he declared, could obtain some of their supplies cheaper by water than over other lines, he said.

"The war is a great reason for the building of these terminals," said Mayor Canfield, "the abnormal and extraordinary situation presented will be the normal situation of the future. The railroads admit that the task is beyond them, their reports showing 120 billions tons more being demanded than heretofore. This is more than the ordinary traffic of the five major European nations now at war combined."

In addition, the figures of the government experts show that the loss in shipping tonnage through inadequate terminals is more than the loss from the submarines."

Mayor Canfield closed with the reading of a letter from Chairman Small of the House Rivers and Harbors Committee, to Secretary of War Baker, pointing out that water terminals must be constructed. This letter made a most satisfactory brief for the Hudson valley terminals proposition, he declared, and wound up his argument with a strong appeal to the senate finance committee to meet the needs of the present grave situation, by favorable action on the pending measure.

Alexander Stolze, representing the Yonkers Chamber of Commerce and Westchester county, said that all of the delegates of Westchester county as well as its residents, favored the matter under consideration. He outlined the scope of the industry in Westchester county, which had grown from 37 factories and manufacturing plants, into many additional plants. He said that the city of Yonkers would pay a large portion of the expense for the construction of necessary barges.

Yonkers has 4½ miles of water front and there is before this legislature a bill for the appointment of a commission to determine the advisability of making the city a maritime terminal. "We have already asked the federal government to extend our bulkhead line."

When Senator Sage asked why it was that Yonkers had not been included in the original terminal plans, one of the delegates replied because the city had been asleep. This fact Senator Slater denied. He said that he had not been a member of the legislature at that time but that after he had arrived on the scene he had started something going.

Mr. Stolze added that he did not think that the war would be over before the desired terminals would have been built. He had come from France recently and it was his impression, he said, that the conflict would continue for several more years. It was his hope, he stated, that the fighting would be over before the terminals were constructed. He ended by promising that the citizens of Yonkers were willing to go deeper in their pockets if by so doing the terminal it desired could be secured.

Corporation Counsel Corwin of Newburgh declared that the need of terminals in Hudson river cities was so great that expenditure was not an essential. He said that Newburgh shipbuilding plants had contracts for the building of ships aggregating 109,000 tons, which must be completed by July 1, 1919. "We need 4,000 workmen for this task and the freight transportation problem is a serious one; later it will be critical without barge canal aid. The past few months has demonstrated that the railroads, for shipping purposes, have been inadequate. If we get our terminals and the barge canal is used, the amount of freight handled would be at least 25 per cent greater than it is at present. It is well to remember that 50,000 tons of supplies must be shipped every day to the Allies and to our 1,000,000 men in France. The ships which must take these supplies cannot now be accommodated at the port of New York, terminals along the Hudson river are thus imperative."

"If the Brush-Walton bill becomes a law, a long step will have been taken toward solving the war transportation problem."

Captain John F. Jenkins of Yonkers, representing a special committee of the Westchester board of supervisors, said that that county was the third largest in the state and that it would pay into the state treasury about $600,000 in taxes this year. That such a county was entitled to consideration was apparent, he pointed out. He added that the board of supervisors favored the Brush-Walton bill to a man.

Mayor Wallin of Yonkers said that since the state had expended $160,000,000 on the barge canal project, that in order to complete the benefits of such expenditure that it should be now made to co-operate with the railroads.

"Since the government now controls the railroads," said Mayor Wallin, "now is the time to establish that cooperation and prevent ruinous rates to be later established by either. The city of Yonkers desires that the state construct a barge canal terminal there. We expect the formation of a waterfront development commission soon. It would result in a substantial saving if products raised in the vicinity of Yonkers could be shipped by the barge canal to the great lakes."

Senator Slater was the last speaker. He declared that a bill passed recently appropriating $10,000 with which to celebrate the completion of the barge canal was a joke. "Why the barge canal will never be completed," he cried, "until the Hudson river cities have been furnished with adequate terminals. There are nearly 1,000,000 residents in the Hudson valley and in that valley almost everything is produced. It is the greatest fruit territory in the state. When a food crisis comes it will be imperative that the produce raised there be shipped, to the cities; the barge canal will furnish this medium. Retrenchment does not mean the elimination of appropriations of both state and national importance such as is this one."

The following were present at the hearing from Newburgh: Mayor Wilson, Corporation Counsel Corwin, Counsellor Sloan, Gurney, Perkins, Spencer, F. W. Wilson, chairman of the Barge Canal Terminal Commission of the Hudson Valley Federation of Chambers of Commerce; F. A. Young, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce; H. R. Odell, president of the Chamber of Commerce.

Yonkers sent this delegation: Mayor Wallin, Captain John F. Jenkins, Aldermen John S. Davis, William J. Barker, Fred H. Silwell, C. Parker Baker, City Clerk Howard Williams, Carl, commissioner of charities; Supervisors Benjamin Fitzgibbons, Alfred Smith, Edward Sickler and Robert Smith; Dr. N. A. Warren, Alexander Stolze, James Ludlow, George S. Eddie, William L. Saunders, William Wiggins, John P. Radcliff, Lawrence Griffith, Assessors Fred D. Breiback and Peter F. Smyth.

Among those from this city who attended the hearing were Joseph M. Herbert, president Chamber of Commerce; Thomas A. Horton, vice president Chamber of Commerce; Vincent A. Gorman, vice president Chamber of Commerce; Charles R. O'Connor, treasurer Chamber of Commerce; Ed. N. Heermans, executive secretary Chamber of Commerce; Mayor Palmer Canfield, Jr.; Alderman-at-Large Samuel Watts; C. Rodman, Still, assistant general manager, Kingston Gas and Electric Company; John E. Mahar, superintendent Prudential Insurance Company; William F. Rafferty, Louis M. Beeres, R. E. Leighton, Charles A. Humphreys, Arthur J. Burns, City Treasurer James F. Canfield, M. Clyde Crosby, Herbert C. Gilbert, F. J. Kennedy, Edward T. McGill, F. J. R. Clarke, Judge John G. Van Etten, Delancy N. Matthews, William O'Reilly, Abraham V. DeGraf, Postmaster William C. DeWitt, Harry H. Flemming, G. W. Van Slyke, Fred Sahior, Howard Chipp, Alfred D. Van Buren, Francis L. Thornberry, Judge William H. Grogan, D. G. Atkins, Dr. Scott G. MacIsaac, Thomas J. Comerford, William M. Davis, Charles Tappan, A. D. Rose.

Hearing, Saturday. The Kingston delegation made the hit for the party, the thirty odd members each wearing a big yellow badge with "Kingston" printed across its face and each holding a flag for the terminal proposition at every opportunity. The hearing was pronounced one of the most representative of the session.

Senator Walton, immaculate and intensely interested that every member of the Finance Committee should perceive the importance of the bill, was the busiest man on the floor. His work in backing the terminals proposition has elicited favorable comment from Chambers of Commerce and the press of the Hudson Valley generally.

Assemblyman Brush of Orange county, co-author of the bill was also on the job and looking after his constituents' interests at every stage. He is most hopeful for the Terminals bill this session of the Senate Committee on Finance can only see fit to report the same favorably.

State Engineer Frank M. Williams who has done much to bring about barge canal terminal work on the Hudson, was represented at the hearing. The state engineer is a native of Orange county and well informed on the Hudson Valley's needs in the way of terminal facilities. His aid has already been a powerful factor in support of this measure.

When one of the speakers mentioned army motor truck transportation, Senator Sage interrupted to say: "I have just been informed that these motor truck trains already threaten damage to the extent of $2,000,000 to New York state highways."

Publisher Fred Wilson of the Newburgh News was an active figure at the hearing. With his newspaper and through his personal influence, he has been doing up support for the terminal measure among up-state legislators as well as among members from the Hudson Valley districts.

Senator Sage, dignified and severe as becomes a legislator in charge of the state's purse-strings, appeared most favorably impressed with the arguments. Last year Senator Sage was sympathetic but not optimistic. At the hearing an optimistic trend was noted in his questioning. As a clerk at Castleton, the senator has helped materially toward securing due consideration for the Hudson Valley as a real "seaport section."

JUSTICE RUDD GRANTS NON-SUIT

In Action Brought by Richard Spellman Against Former Sheriff Shults—First Case of This Kind in Years.

This action brought by Richard S. Spellman, of Saugerties, against Edgar T. Shults, former sheriff of Ulster county, ended Wednesday afternoon in the supreme court by Justice Ridd granting the motion made by John W. Eckert, attorney for Shults, for a non-suit.

This action is the first action brought against a sheriff of this county in a number of years, and Mr. Eckert in his opening address, to the jury, characterized it as "an act to get $2,500 out of Mr. Shults."

Spellman, the plaintiff, on November 26, 1917, started an action in the county court to recover certain property, from Elizabeth L. Spellman (who was awarded a reversion from Spellman). Spellman claimed that this property belonged to him. Elizabeth L. Spellman also claimed the property. This action was not tried.

Spellman took out a writ of replevin under which Sheriff Shults seized the property. Elizabeth L. Spellman then filed a satisfaction bond, and the sheriff returned the property to her.

Spellman alleged that the sheriff had no right to return this property to Elizabeth L. Spellman, without the consent of him (Spellman) or his attorney.

The defense was that the sheriff had acted within his rights and that the suit was just a "strike" to get money from the former sheriff.

Mr. Eckert, in making the motion for the non-suit, stated that Mr. Spellman had not proven his ownership of the goods, and that the county court had accepted bonds to cover the action of the sheriff in returning the goods after they had been replevined.

Mr. Eckert and G. F. Kaufman appeared for Shults; N. H. Fessenden and Frank W. Brooks for Spellman.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, March 28.—There was a vigorous demand at the opening of the stock market today with a great deal of outside buying being induced by the better character of the war news overnight, but the advances were not maintained and before the end of the first 15 minutes, reactions were in order. Steel Common made an initial slip of 1/4 to 3/4 and sold off to 39 1/2, and other steel industrials moved in the same way. American Car Foundry advanced 1 1/2 to 72 1/2 and the reacted to 71 1/2. Reading opened up 1 1/2 to 82 but reacted to 81 1/2. Nor Haven responded to the news in the government to finance the notes maturing April 15th, showing a gain of 3 points with sales at 30 1/2, but reacted to 29 1/2 in the next few minutes. Studebaker continued under pronounced pressure, and after opening 1/4 higher at 40 1/2, dropped to 39, the lowest price touched on this movement.

The reaction which started shortly after the opening continued for the best part of the first hour when losses of around one point were sustained in many issues. Later in the forenoon, however, the market turned strong with recoveries which carried prices of some stocks above the opening level. The volume of business was small. Steel Common after dropping to 39 1/2, rallied to about 40 and American Car Foundry after selling down over one point to 71 1/2, moved up to 73 1/2. Disillers was in brisk demand, moving up over one point to 41 1/2. Studebaker fell down to 39.

Trading during the afternoon was of a pre-holiday character with price movements generally consisting of fractional declines which were followed by a moderate rally in instances. A few specialists were pressed for sale including Tobacco Products and Mexican Petroleum. U. S. Steel Common fluctuated within a narrow range showing only a slight net change from yesterday's final closing.

The market closed heavy today; government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds steady.

America's First Cartoon.
Benjamin Franklin's Pennsylvania Gazette was the first American newspaper to print a cartoon. There were rumors of a possible war with the French, which resulted in a call for a meeting at Albany of the representatives of the British colonies. Franklin was one of the commissioners, and to increase the force of an appeal for united action, on May 2, 1753, printed a cartoon representing a snake cut into eight parts, the head representing New England and the other seven parts the various colonies outside of New England. The legend read: "Join or die."

Send Cigars to Men in Service From A. B. C. D. E.
A very clever scheme has been devised by the chairman of the Cigar Booth at the Annual Benedictine Charity Dance, Easter Monday evening, whereby patrons of the dance may purchase and send cigars to boys in army or navy at home or overseas. There will be in connection with this cigar and flower booth, of which Mrs. Palmer Canfield, Jr., is chairman, and Miss Helena Clearwater, vice-chairman, a post office, with Mayor Palmer Canfield, Jr., as post master, and Dr. Harry Van Wagenen and Peter Barmann, Jr., as chief postal clerks. Cigars done up in special "war" boxes will be for sale and the post office will take the addresses of men in service as given to them and will mail the cigars at once to such men.

So all persons who wish to send this most acceptable souvenir of this year's Benedictine dance to men in camps or cantonments or overseas, should go to the dance prepared to give correct addresses for the mailing of these boxes of cigars. Orders in advance will also be received.

Other helpers at the cigar and flower booth will be Miss Tilly Bongartz, Miss Elizabeth Kearney, Miss Elizabeth Palen, Miss Stella McNelis, Miss Angela Dwyer, Miss Ida Weber, Miss Ethel Van Keuren, Miss Margaret Reardon, Miss Kathryn Reardon, Miss Frances Flannigan, Miss Marie Clark, Mrs. H. P. Van Wagenen, Mrs. E. Palen, Mrs. Peter Barmann, Jr. The lads and lasses who will sell flowers will be Holmes Canfield, Helen Dwyer, Dorothy Dinan, Helen McNelis, Rosalind Canfield, Catherine Kearney, Doris Barmann, Betty Murphy, Sancha Barmann, Ruth Palen, Catherine Deane.

War Correspondent Describes Trail of Desolation Left by the Germans.

VILLAGE RUTHLESSLY BURNED
Sermaze Destroyed, Though Not a Shell Was Fired on It.

By FRED B. PITNEY.
(As special correspondent for the New York Tribune at the seat of war, Mr. Pitney has had exceptional opportunity to investigate conditions in the area of France which was invaded by the Germans at the beginning of the war and has now been evacuated.)

Sermaze, in the valley of the Marne, was a village of 900 houses, the center of a peaceful agricultural community. The Germans entered it without opposition and stayed a week, withdrawing as part of the general movement of the German army at the time of the battle of the Marne. Those German soldiers who were in Sermaze had had a week's rest in the tranquil homes of the French peasants and bourgeoisie of the village. They had had no fighting.

They paid for their week's rest by burning the village on the morning that they left it. Eight hundred and sixty of the 900 houses of Sermaze were utterly destroyed. And not a shell fell on the town from either side. Not a shot was fired in the streets. Yet it looks today like the ruins of a village devastated in the Napoleonic wars.

The ruins of the church at Beazeze.

Ruins of the Church at Beazeze.

I remember another town that, except for one house, had been wiped from the map of living things. It was Rembercourt, on the road from Bar-le-Duc to Verdun. It was pure desolation. It was the track of the war.

It was the farthest south the Crown Prince had come in the first rush of the German invasion of France. In the battle that followed the Germans had been southeast and the French southwest of the town. The French had stopped the Crown Prince there and after four days had driven him back to where he is now in the Argonne and north and east of Verdun. At no time had a French soldier been in the town, yet the Germans had shelled it for four days.

Only One House Spared.
The houses of the town had been built of stone and their roofs had been of stone or slate. It had been one of the quaint little grey stone villages, such as are all the villages and farms of France. Before the war it was a happy and prosperous. Now it was a scattered pile of yellowing ruins from the Middle Ages. The house with the roof, the only house not struck by the shells, was the only one that preserved its grey white tone.

The streets were strewn with blocks of stone. The roof trees lay in the cellars. Half fallen walls were a constant menace. Windows lacked their frames and doorways their doors. The tower of the church sprawled across the street, while the bell hung precariously through a hole made in the roof of the building when the shot that carried away the tower passed through.

A few miles further on toward Verdun is Beazeze, where the church had been the principal target of the German gunners. Its tower still stood, but we climbed into the church over what had been one of the side walls and picked our way among the roof beams. A shell had struck the main altar, while the benches for the worshippers were crushed beneath the fallen pillars. On a bit of the wall yet standing was a painting of the Feast of the Passover, and in front of it a candelabrum hung and swung like a pendulum in the gentle breeze, while two candles flickered before an altar that had been nicked by shrapnel.

Such are a few isolated examples of what Germany does in war. This is the people against whom America is fighting. It behooves those who remain at home, those who do not go to the front with arms in their hands, to see to it that the armies at the front are equipped for victory. The armies cannot win without the concurrence of the people at home.

The Scars of Battle.
A few miles from Verdun, just off the battle line, in fact, for the big guns could be plainly heard, I saw two women and a boy hard at work filling in a trench that ran diagonally across a field and interfered with the mowing. That incident furnished the answer to a question I had been asking myself ever since we left Paris. My question was, "Where are the scars of battle along the Marne?" Here, near Verdun, I found the answer that had escaped me before. It was the women and children working in the fields. The absence of men, the front led me later to travel over several hundred miles of western France to see if I would find the same conditions there. Everywhere I found the same thing. The able-bodied men, young, middle aged, and many of them white haired, were in uniform, while the women and children, the crippled and infirm were doing the men's work at home.

Placing open drinking vessels on a shelf a foot or more above the floor prevents the hens from scratching coarse litter into them, but does not keep out the dust which floats in the air and settles in the water.

Thoroughly rinsing open vessels once a day and scalding drinking fountains once or twice a week will usually keep them as clean as necessary.

VARIATION IN BARRED ROCKS

Pains Must Be Taken to Keep Fowl Typical of the Variety They Represent.

To see the many flocks of chickens over the country, varying in size, shape and color, yet all dubbed purebred Plymouth Rocks, or Reds, or Wyandottes, as the case may be, leads one to wonder if breeders, aside from those who breed for the showroom, know what the type of their breed is. The variation in a Barred Rock, or Barred Plymouth Rock Chicken.

Red, or "Dotter," from the type of bird accepted by the standard, is great. Unless some pains are taken to keep the birds of a breed typical of the variety they represent, a comparatively short time makes all the breeds look alike.

RIGHT QUALITIES OF MALES

They Should Be Gallant, but Not Too Generous, and Thus Deprive Himself—Study Nature of Bird.

The male should be gallant, and ready to share his meals with the hens; but he must not be too generous and thus deprive himself, or he will be underfed, become nervous, and not prove to be a good breeder. The glutton male is equally bad. He becomes overfat while the hens do not get their share, and the consequence is poor fertility. The nature of every male bird should be studied.

SAVE THE HENS

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Every pullet and young hen sold for food this winter means a reduction of from five to twelve dozen eggs in the potential egg supply of next spring and summer.

Hundreds of thousands of farmers who have not raised poultry will do so next spring and summer—responding to the demand for more chickens and eggs so that beef and pork will be released to help win the war. They will need young hens.

The United States department of agriculture urges the saving of fowls of producing qualities, so that they may be used for stock in the early spring.

POULTRY

Sufficient Supply, Frequently Renewed, Is as Necessary as Proper Amount of Food.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
If your flock of poultry has not been doing as well as you think it ought to, perhaps it is because you have not been providing the chickens with a supply of fresh, pure drinking water. Of course, lack of thirst and low egg yields may be due to a number of other certain causes, such as poor stock, poor feed (both quality and quantity), bad housing conditions, diseases, presence of lice and mites, and lack of care. But for some reason many poultry raisers who give attention to these items sometimes neglect the water supply. A supply of pure drinking water frequently renewed is as necessary for poultry as sufficient amounts of food.

There are two different types of drinking vessels for poultry in common use: Open vessels—pails, pans, crocks and the like; and drinking fountains so constructed that dirt and dust cannot get into the water except by way of a very small exposed surface. These quite opposite types of drinking vessels are about equally popular with poultry keepers. Open vessels catch more dirt and dust, but are more easily cleaned. Closed fountains may be used much longer without cleaning, but if allowed to become foul are harder to clean thoroughly.

Placing open drinking vessels on a shelf a foot or more above the floor prevents the hens from scratching coarse litter into them, but does not keep out the dust which floats in the air and settles in the water.

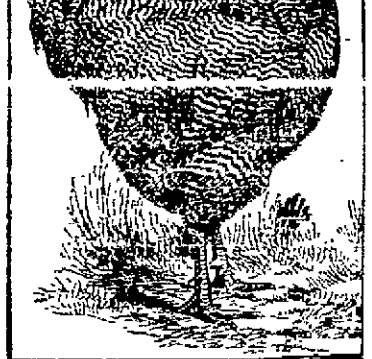

Thoroughly rinsing open vessels once a day and scalding drinking fountains once or twice a week will usually keep them as clean as necessary.

VERDICT FOR NO CAUSE OF ACTION

Mrs. Supples Loses Her Case Against the City—Claimed that the Washington Avenue Grade Was Raised, Causing Water to Run Into Her Cellars.

The jury in the supreme court in the action brought by Mrs. Carrie Supples against the City of Kingston brought in a verdict Wednesday afternoon after being out for twenty-five minutes, for no cause of action.

Mrs. Supples owns dwellings at 424-428 Washington avenue and claims that because the city raised the grade on Washington avenue when a section of this street was paved, water ran into the cellars of these buildings at various times, causing considerable damage to the foundations and cellars.

The defense was that the grade was not raised and that the condition complained of was caused by the clay and quicksand in the soil which caused the sidewalk to sink in at several points; and other causes for which the city was not responsible.

J. M. Fowler appeared for Mrs. Supples; Corporation Counsel William D. Brinzier, Sr., for the city.

SEWING MACHINES ARE BADLY NEEDED

So greatly has the work of making Red Cross hospital garments increased at headquarters on Broadway that it is now necessary to ask for more sewing machines. This Miss Millard, chairman of the hospital garments committee, has asked The Freeman to do. Two or three good sewing machines, that is lock stitch machines that are in good running order, are needed at the headquarters and two are needed at the English Lutheran Church. The need of emphasizing the fact that the machines must be in good working condition is apparent when one considers that when busy housekeepers give up one or more afternoons to do this work, it is asking altogether too much of them to require in addition that they spend any part of that time tussling with machines that are either out of order or that are too old to be put in good order. One might naturally hesitate to ask for many things as a gift or loan under ordinary circumstances, but when it comes to asking for any necessary equipment for the making of more effective our Red Cross work, not to ask would be decidedly false modesty. So the Red Cross hopes that there are four or five people in this city who will either give or loan good, lock stitch sewing machines for the Red Cross work during this war period. Any persons having such a machine to give or loan are asked to at once communicate with the Red Cross Headquarters, telephone 1850, as soon as possible.

PLANS TO HALT GREAT WHITE PLAGUE

County Committee Considers Dispensary and Other Preventive and Curative Measures in the War on Tuberculosis.

Yes, and several other things, to make more effective the work of preventing and curing tuberculosis in Ulster county, as appeared at a meeting of the executive council of the tuberculosis committee held Wednesday afternoon in the office of the president, the Hon. Joseph M. Fowler. The meeting was a special meeting to consider this question of a dispensary and to hear reports concerning the securing of a temporary visiting nurse, the purchase of an automobile for the transportation of tuberculosis work in the county.

Dr. Prest, who is connected with the State Board of Health but who is now on a leave of absence from that board and serving under the State Charities Aid in the interest of establishing dispensaries was present and addressed the meeting.

Dr. Prest said that there were twenty-eight cities in the state, some smaller than Kingston, where such dispensaries are now in operation, with good results, too. These dispensaries which are located in the center of the cities, are not only accessible to the people, but are also wonderful objects lessons all the time, to the entire community.

The visiting nurse works from the dispensary, to bring cases to the dispensary or through the dispensary if necessary, to the tuberculosis hospital. As the visiting nurse discovers some advanced case, for instance, the other members of the family who doubtless, may be incipient cases can be examined and watched through the dispensary.

The gratuitous examination and diagnosis may mean one of the biggest possible factors in any community in checking the onward march of this disease. It has been repeatedly found that where the nurse finds one case which comes to the dispensary, that patient is very likely to bring other patients, often whole groups of incipient cases, are thus discovered at the proper time for making a cure possible. The cost, outside the nurse herself, which Ulster county already has, was shown by Dr. Prest to be small.

That is needed is two fair-sized rooms, properly located, one room to be used for a waiting room and the nurse's office and the other for an examining room. The only part of the equipment which would cost more than a nominal sum would be the scales. Where dispensaries are already doing good work, there are held, usually, three clinics a week: One afternoon, one evening and one Saturday morning hour, to accommodate the employed and unemployed and school children, often discovered by the school nurse to have tuberculosis tendencies. The world war has emphasized as never before the need of conserving human life, and this work comes emphatically under that head.

While the plan has been tried out of having physicians give their services, it has been found that the best way is to pay the physician a small, regular fee, demanding in return, that the doctor in charge be at the dispensary at the stated hours or provide a satisfactory substitute.

The entire committee, after hearing Dr. Prest, seemed in favor of establishing such a dispensary in Kingston, and in order that necessary information might be forthcoming to enable the committee to work to the best advantage, a committee composed of Dr. Gates, Dr. Doderer, Dr. O'Meara and Mr. Fowler ex officio was appointed to do the necessary investigating and report back to the executive council.

The committee having in charge the securing of a nurse to take Miss O'Shea's place during her leave of absence, then reported having secured Miss Brown, who for the past four years has been assistant nurse at the Tuberculosis Hospital. With the assumption of this work, Miss Brown's place at the hospital would have to be filled, and inasmuch as it had been planned to secure a night nurse for the hospital, it was decided to secure two certified or trained nurses to take the place of Miss Brown, (registered nurse), one of these nurses to act as night nurse. The details of the arrangements were left with the committee.

The next matter to be brought up, and one of much importance as regards the efficiency of the tuberculosis work, especially in the county, was that of the purchase of an automobile for the use of the visiting nurse and other such purposes in connection with the hospital service as the committee should deem desirable. It was pointed out that since the county yearly contributes a generous amount through Christmas Seals Sales, toward the work, it should have its share of the service of the nurse, which is almost an utter impossibility if train service and horse hire are to be depended upon. The members of the executive council present, were unanimous in their opinion that the purchase of a suitable automobile was necessary and a committee composed of Sam Bernstein, Cornelius Hume and the Rev. J. H. Brindy was appointed to investigate both the cost of small autos and their running expenses to report back to the council at its next meeting.

It was called to the attention of the meeting that a law had recently been passed making it obligatory for the counties of New York state to have and maintain a tuberculosis hospital. Still more recently the supervisors of Ulster county have petitioned for an amendment to the law making it optional, not obligatory for the counties to have and maintain such a hospital. A resolution was passed by the meeting on Wednesday, to the effect that it was the sense of the executive council of the Ulster County Committee on the Prevention of Tuberculosis that the law, as it now stands, should remain in force and that any amendment changing it to make tuberculosis hospitals in the counties optional would be inopportune and ill advised, especially in view of the war situation regarding the return of soldiers ill with tuberculosis, and such resolution will be forwarded to our senator. The meeting then adjourned.

SAVORY SAUCES.

A well seasoned sauce adds much to an otherwise very ordinary dish.

Oyster Cocktail Sauce.—Take three tablespoons of tomato catsup, one tablespoonful of horseradish sauce, a teaspoonful of Worcestershire well mixed and served in lemon cups in a dish of crushed ice with oysters.

Snappy French Dressing.—Take two tablespoons of olive oil, a tablespoonful of tarragon vinegar, a dash of paprika, a quarter of a teaspoonful each of mustard and salt; mix well and serve in the heart leaves of lettuce; sprinkle over a teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce and a tablespoonful of finely chopped onion and a generous sprinkling of red pepper.

Russian Dressing.—Beat two eggs, add red pepper and half a teaspoonful of salt, a teaspoonful of finely minced parsley, two teaspoonfuls each of chopped green and red pepper, a half cupful of tarragon vinegar. Mix well and add two cupfuls each of chili sauce and mayonnaise.

Mignonette Sauce.—Chop three small onions, add seven tablespoonfuls of crushed whole peppers (not ground pepper), add three cupfuls of tarragon vinegar, put into a jar well covered and let stand for two days, when it will be ready to use. The sauce may be strained when ready to serve. Very tasty sauce for oysters.

Emergency Salad Dressing.—Use any left-over yolks or whites—both are better, and the more of the yolk the richer will be the dressing. Beat and measure and take an equal measure of mild vinegar—strong vinegar may be diluted with water; put over hot water to cook, stirring constantly with an eggbeater. When thick, set away in a covered jar. When wanted for use, take out a few tablespoonfuls, season with salt, pepper, onion juice, vinegar, cream, or olive oil, depending upon the kind of salad one is serving.

Looks for World Famine.

Mr. Egan, United States minister to Denmark, says if the war lasts two years longer the whole world will be on the verge of starvation. That is possible. With 10,000,000 men in arms, consuming and not producing, the time is coming and is not far off when there will be no food left. A foodless world will be a strange experience. There have been famines, but for the people to have nothing to eat anywhere is a situation that has never been anticipated heretofore. There is some gratification in thinking that the Hun will be getting hungrier than we are and will be turning to us to borrow a little flour and bacon, which we will be sure to lend him on condition that he promises to behave himself and let up on his Kultur.—Ohio State Journal.
